LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Anne visited the House of Commons for the first time Thursday shortly after it was announced she will be sent away to private school in southeast England this autumn.

The 13-year-old princess, wearing a ribbon in her hair, was treated to a stormy session of Parliament with references to corruption and prostitution.

She heard an exchange over the late Peter Rachman, real estate tycoon who kept playgirl Mandy Rice-Davies.

It was announced meanwhile that the young princess will attend exclusive Benenden School for girls, 50 miles from here, in Kent.

Benenden's fees, which increased by £45 Thursday, total £325 a year.

Anne will be joined at school by two Ethiopian princesses and another princess from Jordan.

Previously, Anne's education was with a governess at Buckingham Palace. She began lessons there when she was five. For the last six years, she has had only two "classmates," Caroline Hamilton and Susan Bebbington Smith.

The uproar in Parliament blew up while Housing Minister Sir Keith Joseph was attempting to field a barrage of questions about his department's activities.

From her perch high in the gallery, Anne heard one opposition Labor party member claim the proper redevelopment of British slums was being hindered by speculation in property and prostitution.

The clamor reached a peak when the parliamentary secretary to the housing minister, F. V. Corfield, said he knew of no evidence to show that land reclamation, normally carried out by the government, was being frustrated.

Through it all, Anne had the procedures of Parliament explained by the sergeant-at-arms, Rear-Admiral A. H. C. Gordon Lennox, wearing his traditional court costume of black silk stockings and silver-buckled shoes.

Princess Anne smiles as she leaves House of Commons.

Two-Year Term

RCMP MAN NEW CHIEF

By IAN STREET

RCMP Staff-Sgt. John Frederick Gregory, 43, has been appointed by Victoria police commission to a two-year term as chief constable of the city force.

STAFF-SGT. GREGORY
... 24 years' service

Commission chairman Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday there is "a distinct possibility" that he will fill the job permanently after guiding the department through the initial two-year period of rebuilding and reorganization.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Final approval from Ottawa is still awaited for the appointment, but it is expected he will obtain permission for a two-year leave of absence from the RCMP.

A veteran of 24 years' service, first with the B.C. provincial police, and since the disbandment of that force in 1950, with the RCMP, the tall, red-headed officer is currently serving as second-in-command of the Prince Rupert subdivision.

BIG DISTRICT

Posting to the district, second largest in B.C., is recognized as a tough assignment.

Staff-Sgt. Gregory is highly recommended for the position of chief by former RCMP superintendent George Archer, who submitted a recent survey into efficiency and future organization of the force.

GOOD REPUTATION

Mr. Archer told the commission: "I spent most of this morning (July 11) with your selectee and I am glad to endorse him. His reputation with the RCM Police is good and he has good practical experience behind him."

"He impressed me with his approach to what lies ahead," Mr. Archer added. "I shall watch with interest the progress of your force with your new chief at the helm. There is no reason why it should not develop into a first-class outfit."

TO START SEPT. 1

The new chief is expected to take over from Chief John Blackstock Sept. 1. Mr. Blackstock submitted his resignation, effective Dec. 31, on the eve of the Archer Report being made public.

Mr. Archer, in the report, recommended that the job of reorganizing the force be given to a man brought in from the outside.

'VERY PLEASED'

Mayor Wilson said yesterday he and other members of the commission are "very pleased" with the appointment. Staff-Sgt. Gregory was chosen from among "many highly qualified applicants" from centres across Canada. The selection was made on basis of the new

Hit Economy?

U.S. Tax Plan Rocks Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Official Ottawa reacted with deep concern Thursday to the potentially explosive proposal by President Kennedy for a U.S. tax deterrent to American foreign investment.

U.S. Tax Move

No Bite On B.C. Projects

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

B.C.'s two huge hydro power projects are safe from the jaws of President Kennedy's proposed new tax bite on foreign investment, Premier Bennett told the Colonist Thursday.

He said some sort of move by the U.S. to curb the outflow of American dollars has appeared to him to be inevitable for some time and B.C. has taken steps to meet it.

One of the steps was in amassing the $40,000,000 cumulative surplus which was disclosed yesterday.

The tax which Kennedy has proposed to congress will mean

In a Commons statement that reflected utmost caution, Finance Minister Gordon said the proposal, if adopted by the U.S. congress, "may well have an important effect" on the Canadian economy and balance-of-payments position.

He added it would be "unwise" for him to say more pending "careful study and consideration to all the implications of the president's proposal."

Persons close to the situation said the implications would be widespread, affecting many factors of Canada's economic life.

MAY SLOW GROWTH

Among the possible effects: slower economic growth, higher interest rates, new foreign exchange problems, and a rise in American investment in U.S.-controlled firms in Canada.

Mr. Gordon held several meetings with senior officials and informants indicated the government is seeking means of offsetting some of the repercussions of the president's proposal, especially higher interest rates that could affect industrial expansion and employment.

NOTE CONSIDERED

The government may send a diplomatic note to Washington setting out Canada's fears and objections.

In his message to Congress, President Kennedy called for an immediate excise tax on American purchases of securities from Canada and 21 other industrialized countries. The tax would be 15 per cent on stock purchases and from 2½ to 15 per cent on purchases of bonds, debentures and other debt securities maturing in more than three years.

STOP OUTFLOW

His goal is to stop heavy outflow of U.S. investment capital which has created balance-of-payments difficulties.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons the U.S. treasury sent a special official here Thursday morning to brief the Canadian government.

Mr. Gordon said the effect would be to add an extra one per cent to the annual interest costs on Canadian bond borrowings in the U.S.

George Nowlan, former Conservative finance minister, said in the Commons that Mr. Gordon's statement to the House on the president's proposal was "one of the most important statements" that could be made.

Dockers Plan Work Stoppage

The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union has called a one-day work stoppage for today in Vancouver, New Westminster and Port Hardy as general membership meetings can be called to report on negotiations with employers. There will be no stoppage in Victoria.

Red Agent 'Still In Russia'

MOSCOW (AP)—Investia said Thursday the man named as the Russian intelligence officer who was reported to have defected to the West, Anatoly Dostoyev, is actually in Russia.

The Soviet government newspaper backed its claim by publishing a picture of a blond, bespectacled young man which it said was taken in its offices Thursday.

It said Dostoyev worked in the Soviet embassy in London in 1961, as Western reports said.

"Of course, he never defected and never asked anyone for asylum," the newspaper said.

Contributory Plan Old Age Pension Boost To $75 Slated Next Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The old age pension will be boosted $10 to $75 monthly at age 70 early next year under the proposed Canada Pension Plan, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Thursday.

By October next year, it is hoped to start collecting employer - employee contributions up to a maximum $3.32 monthly from each—or a maximum $40 annually — to finance the scheme.

The proposals outlined Thursday, including the $10 increase and subsequent additions, will be financed by contributions. The basic $65-a-month old age pension will continue to be financed by the old age security tax—amounting to three per cent of income or a maximum of $90 a year.

Under the new contributory plan January, 1966, has been set as the target to begin paying the first additional amounts over and above the flat $75 monthly pension. These additional payments would start at a maximum $10 a month per individual in 1966 and rise to a maximum $100 at the end of the 10-year program to get the scheme launched.

MAXIMUM OF $125

Thus, under maximum conditions depending on earnings, an individual by 1975 could be getting a federal pension of $175 monthly compared with the existing payment of $65.

In addition, in 1966 individuals can elect to take their pensions at age 65 or any year thereafter up to age 70—but such pensions would be smaller than those taken at age 70.

HARD WORK AHEAD

The whole timetable is contingent on Parliament passing the necessary legislation, plus some hard work for nearly a year in lining up the machinery, which will include identification numbers for each individual and a special computer.

Coverage will be compulsory for most employees. Possible exceptions will be persons such as farm help—where it will be difficult to administer the collection of contributions by employers.

TWO PER CENT

Contributions will be based initially at not more than two per cent of earnings up to a total of $4,000 annually. Persons earning more than $4,000 will contribute at the $4,000 rate.

Contributors will benefit proportionately to the amount of their investment in the fund, which will be self-supporting in its entirety, Miss LaMarsh said.

DEBATES PLAN

Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, following her in the preliminary Commons debate at resolution stage, said the plan was "far from clear," and presented to Parliament "with a great deal of window dressing in it."

He added: "The old people will be thoroughly dismayed by the fact that the $10 increase promised in the election campaign..."

FOR VOTES

"For votes," one of the Conservative backbenchers interjected. "... is not going to be received immediately as had been promised."

Students Mob Kennedy Grab Hankie, Tie Clasp

$11,500,000

Estate of $11,500,000 was left by Swedish financier Dr. Axel Wenner-Gren, half of it to the Wenner-Gren Foundation of Sweden. It was learned Thursday, his huge industrial plans for central B.C. were finally dropped after his death.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy lost his breast pocket handkerchief and a PT boat tie clasp Thursday when he was mobbed on the White House lawn by 2,500 jostling foreign students.

The president got back to his office safely, still smiling, but a little wilted.

But secret service agents and White House policemen who ringed the president to protect him did not fare so well.

One officer, who has had heart trouble, was overcome in the 90-degree heat; another had all of his tie except the knot torn from his neck, and a secret service agent lost a shoe.

A boy snatched Kennedy's tie clasp, and a girl got his handkerchief. "That's two from our bus that got something," one girl proudly exclaimed. Another girl, watching officers trying to protect the president, observed: "My, but these policemen are so tactless."

The melee took place at the annual White House reception for foreign students in the U.S. under American field service exchange scholarships. The bedlam broke loose ministerial committee to co-

when Kennedy—after making brief remarks—walked up to the students massed in a roped-off area.

The students swarmed around him and plowed into his prized boxwood hedges.

Viet Nam Meets Buddhist Demands

SAIGON (Reuters-AP)—South Viet Nam's Roman Catholic President, Ngo Dinh Diem, held out an olive branch to the country's Buddhists Thursday night.

60 Buddhist monks and nuns ended a 48-hour hunger strike against alleged religious discrimination.

The monks and nuns remained inside the Xa Loi Pagoda, which has been blockaded by government police since Tuesday. Diem in a broadcast said he had instructed a special inter-ministerial committee to cooperate closely with Buddhist leaders to settle complaints about implementation of an agreement signed between the Buddhists and the government June 16.

He also acceded to Buddhist demands that all sects be given equal rights to fly religious flags.

The Buddhists claim that the government is being too tardy in putting into effect the provisions of a communique, which was aimed at equating Buddhism with Christianity in this predominantly Buddhist nation.

Canadian Imports

U.S. Senate Backs Marked Lumber

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted Thursday, in the face of Kennedy administration opposition, to require that Canadian lumber imported into the United States be marked to show its origin.

The requirement was embodied in an amendment sponsored by Senator Warren G. Magnuson (Dem. Wash.) to a House of Representatives bill requiring that when imported articles are repackaged in this country, the new packages must be marked to show the country of origin.

Magnuson's amendment was adopted on a standing vote. Senators from the Pacific Northwest long have complained about Canadian lumber imports and have demanded action to stop them.

The Washington Senator told his colleagues Thursday that "Canada has taken 80 per cent of our (lumber) market."

State and commerce department officials told the finance committee during hearings on the legislation that such an amendment would violate a long-standing trade agreement between the United States and Canada.

The state department submitted to the committee an aide memoire from the Canadian embassy declaring that "Canadian authorities would consider such marketing requirements as having serious restrictive implications."

The bill now goes back to the House for consideration of the lumber amendment.

New Chief Appointed

chief's "record, ability and personality," the mayor added. "The commission has every confidence that he can handle the big job of rebuilding and reorganization that lies ahead," Mayor Wilson said.

EFFICIENT FORCE

He added: "The commission's aim is to make Victoria police department the most efficient force in B.C."

"There is much good material in the present force and with the right kind of leadership, training and discipline it can be welded into an effective unit."

One of the first jobs facing the new chief will be studying the accommodation needs of the police headquarters building on Flanagan and recommending desired changes to the police commission.

"The basic structure is sound," the mayor said. "We're confident that it can be converted into a modern and efficient police building."

Staff-Sgt. Gregory will travel to several cities in western Canada during his vacation in the next few weeks to study the best available modern police accommodation.

He is married, with a teenage son and daughter. He is also a member of Cranbrook Lodge, A.F. & A.M., Gresh Temple, director of Prince Rupert Rotary Club and chairman of the sponsoring committee of 350 Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets.

BORN IN ENGLAND

Born Dec. 6, 1919, at Wellington, England, he came to Vernon with his family at the age of five. He completed Grade 12 in Vernon schools and joined the B.C. provincial police June 10, 1939.

He has served in many B.C. centres, including Victoria, for 18 months immediately after the war, and in recent years served with RCMP detachments in Kamloops and Kilmat before being posted to Prince Rupert sub-division.

Staff-Sgt. Gregory attended B.C. provincial police training school, RCMP indoctrination class in 1952, preventive service

Clubs Planning Joint Picnic

Members of the Chinook Club and Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers Association will hold a combined picnic Sunday.

The picnic, which may become an annual affair, will start at 12 noon at Shore Acres Marina at Mill Bay. Members of both clubs are welcome for a full afternoon of games, swimming, races and club competitions.

Big Parks Program Scheduled Today

Sandbox art and a fancy dress parade will keep almost 2,500 Greater Victoria children busy today in nine city parks and Oak Bay's Carnarvon Park.

The city parks will hold sandbox contests as part of the city's summer park recreation program with prizes to be awarded to the two parks which give the best displays.

The judging will begin at 1:30 p.m. with members of the city's parks department and T. Eaton Co. trying to decide which parks have the best shows.

Projects planned include ferries, buildings, castles, relief maps of Vancouver Island and a display showing architecture through the ages.

In Oak Bay supervisor Linda Bishop will hold a fancy dress parade with a circus theme for some 300 children who take part in the summer program.

higher interest rates for Canadian borrowing in the U.S.

But, said the premier, B.C. will not, strictly speaking, be doing any borrowing in the U.S. for power projects.

The Peace project, already underway, will continue to be financed in B.C.

To finance the $300,000,000 Columbia River development B.C. expects to obtain from U.S. sources a series of advances on the price to be paid for the province's downstream power entitlement.

NOT BORROWING

"As advances they would not be borrowings and hence would escape the new Kennedy restrictions," said the premier.

How seriously would the Kennedy tax hit Canada?

"Not as badly as the federal financial crisis last year," the premier replied.

But he urged immediate counter-measures by Ottawa to mitigate the effect.

He called for full repeal of the new federal tax on construction materials, easing of credit and a lower prime interest rate.

BASIC RULES

The U.S. had suffered repeated deficits "and it doesn't matter how big you are, you have to follow the same basic rules."

"You can't go on picking up the dinner check all the time," B.C. will be spared much of the impact because of what the premier referred to as a "$35,000,000 shock absorber" in the form of bank deposits, as well as other liquid assets.

"Call me an old-fashioned premier if you like," he said, "but it's nice to have something put aside for a rainy day."

He predicted that if the Kennedy measure is adopted, it will only last six months.

The Peace project, he said, would continue to be financed by hydro earnings, the cumulative surplus and government-administered pension funds.

PENSION MONEY

A total of about $250,000,000 in pension fund money is administered by the government and much of it is available for reinvestment at going interest rates.

He thought the advances with which he plans to finance the Columbia development might come from the Bonneville Power Administration or from companies which plan to purchase the power.

Treasury Minister Bonner said the proposed U.S. tax will hinder expansion programs for some Canadian companies planning to borrow in the U.S.

Your Good Health

Non-Irritating Diet Cure for Gastritis

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: What about gastritis? My husband has it. He feels as if his heart is "crowded" — he gets short of breath when he tries to work and yet the doctor says his heart is good. Is diet the cure?—M.N.

Well, yes, I think we can say diet is the cure, but let me explain why.

Gastritis is an efficient way of saying that the patient is suffering from an irritation or inflammation of the mucosa or inner lining of the stomach. Swallowing a corrosive acid or alkali produces gastritis of a critical sort. Spoiled food can cause it, too.

There can be gastritis from too-highly spiced food, from food allergies, from various drugs including some antibiotics.

FROM ALCOHOL

Gastritis from alcohol is a common condition.

Symptoms are variable: a feeling of fullness in the stomach, heartburn or lesser pain, headache, dizziness, vomiting, fever, exhaustion, coated tongue.

The gastritis alone shouldn't shake him huff and puff, since his heart is good. What about his lungs and respiratory system, however? Did the breathlessness exist before the gastritis started? Is the patient, by any chance, just plain out of condition from lack of exercise? Is he overweight? Does he overeat? How about alcohol?

Irritation of the stomach, like anywhere else, must be treated first of all by removing its cause. If it is food, medications or alcohol, the irritant must be stopped.

In that sense, diet is the cure. That doesn't mean a rigid or fancy diet. It means a non-irritating but reasonable one. That is, in such cases, almost invariably an effective treatment and very little if any medicine is needed.

Dear Sir: What vitamins would you recommend to extend a man's sexual life at age 60?—J.M.B.

None. Vitamins have nothing to do with the problem, assuming you get enough for reasonable general health. Why not accept the fact that 60 is 60?

Dear Dr. Molner: Is chronic diarrhoea one of the oldest plagues?—M.W.

Not necessarily. Often a lack of acid in the stomach causes it. Amebic dysentery is a possibility. So is irritation from diverticulosis. Most cases can be corrected once the right diagnosis has been made. See your doctor, and your chances of ending this trouble are good.

An hour and 25 minutes after the meeting opened, Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman and Lord Hailsham, the U.S. and British chief negotiators, drove away together.

Asked how the talks were progressing, Hailsham replied: "Reasonably nicely."

Wednesday's common unique had said progress was made in drafting some of the provisions of a test ban treaty.

The delegates dug out texts of the earlier treaties proposed in the talks in Geneva. In the new spirit evident in the first three days of the talks, the old treaties might form the pattern of an agreement that was impossible in Geneva.

One delegation member indicated he felt all along that if there truly was a will for a treaty, a treaty would be worked out. Increasingly the Western delegates have indicated there is a will evident in Moscow for an agreement.

A shadow was cast over the talks by the surprise arrival of the East German delegation headed by Foreign Minister Lothar Bolz. Asked about it, Harriman said he had not been told the East Germans were coming to Moscow. Under no circumstances, he said, would the U.S. delegation have any contact with the East Germans.

MOOD STILL GOOD

There apparently was talk about a non-aggression arrangement between the North Atlantic Treaty Organization and the Warsaw Pact nations, as well as an agreement designed to prevent spread of nuclear arms into other hands, notably those of Red China or West Germany.

BALBOA, Canal Zone — A California research specialist who was felled by a mysterious "bleeding fever" virus he isolated in a Bolivian epidemic zone has recovered from the disease and has been released from hospital. Dr. Ronald MacKenzie, 38, plans to return to San Joaquin, Bolivia, where a mystery hemorrhagic fever epidemic has killed more than 100 persons.

BOURNEMOUTH, England — Dance orchestra leader George Melachrino, 54, was reported unconscious in hospital after collapsing at a resort hotel. His wife said he fell and aggravated a recent back injury.

PASSAU, Germany — City council decided to revive a long-forgotten bequest from a court official named Johann Schmidt, who apparently had an obsession about the chance of living interment. He left $60 to be given to any gravedigger who saves a person from being buried alive.

WASHINGTON — Dr. Janet Travell, the back specialist who became the first woman presidential doctor, apparently has been replaced. A U.S. government organization in a memo names Rear Admiral George Buckley as physician to the president.

CHELSEHAM, England — Mrs. Agatha Thompson, 65, received a love letter that a boy friend mailed to her from Banbury, less than 100 miles away, 42 years ago. A post office spokesman said: "It must have slipped down somewhere."

WINNIPEG — An RCMP plane crew found and rescued flight cadets R. J. Urusky, 22, of Wallaceburg, Ont., and G. G. MacIsaac, 21, of Denmark, who vanished last weekend during a fishing trip in northeast Manitoba. Their condition is good.

MILAN — Tommaso Pisto, 22, who hitch-hiked more than 500 miles disguised as a girl, said he donned the feminine garb because it is easier for girls to get rides.

ALCONBURY, England — The U.S. Air Force base here put its five-year-old guard dog Charlie back on duty with a set of false teeth. Charlie lost his real teeth by chewing on concrete, wire fences and wooden posts.

MANVILLE, N.J. — A parachute jumper fell more than a mile to his death when his main chute failed to open. John Maurice, 25, practicing target jumping, dropped from 5,600 feet and smashed into a wheat field 200 yards off-target.

HOLLYWOOD — Curvaceous Jane Russell, now 42, and singers Beryl Davis and Connie Mayne open a night club act together in Las Vegas Aug. 5.

On the other hand, a Middle Eastern source connected with the United Nations in New York said the plotters were followers of Maj. Gen. Ziad Harezi, a non-Ba'athist career officer. He was discharged and exiled to Paris 10 days ago after losing a power struggle with the Syrian Army's strongman, Maj. Gen. Amin Hafez.

BEATEN DOWN

Four hours after the rebels struck at strategic centres in Damascus, the capital's radio station announced that the uprising of "civilians supported by a small number of discharged military men" had been beaten and crushed.

MYRTLE BEACH, S.C. — A bolt of lightning struck a beach umbrella, killing Barbara Briggs, 16, and injuring her mother and young brother. Coroner Littlejohn Blanton said there was no rain or wind and only "a couple of rumbles."

CHITTAGONG, East Pakistan (Reuters) — About 1,200,000 people have fled their homes in floods sweeping the Chittagong area, authorities announced Thursday. More than 120 were believed dead.

The floods are the second to sweep the area in six weeks. Last May 2 a cyclone caused deaths officially estimated at 12,000.

When James Lowens, 26, finished his story, the magistrate turned to crown attorney David Sanders and asked: "What do you think?"

"I'm beginning to get thirsty," Sanders replied.

Lowens, who said he dumped the beer over his fuel pump to get rid of a vapor lock which had stalled the car, was acquitted on a charge of having liquor in an illegal place.

GLOUCESTER, England — Princess Margaret, commandant-in-chief of the St. John Ambulance Brigade, flashed her most charming smile for 3,000 cadets at a rally she attended on Cheltenham race course.

SALEM, Ore. — The show went on as the crowd of 2,300 didn't know Mrs. Arthur D. Clark, 33, of Red Bank, N.J., had died after falling 25 feet from a taut wire to the concrete floor of Salem Armory. She and her nephew, Ronald Weinrich, 18, rode at opposite ends of a revolving ladder, suspended horizontally from a motorcycle ridden by her husband. She ran into a wire inadvertently left up by the preceding act.

CORDELE, Ga. — McKenna Brooks Hyman, about 41, author of the best-seller No Time for Sergeants, died, apparently of a heart attack.

KARLSRUHE, Germany — The prosecution demanded 15 years imprisonment at hard labor for confessed Soviet double agent Heinz Felfe, 43.

Armed Revolt Crushed By Syrian Soldiers

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Syrian troops Thursday beat down with tanks and guns an armed attempt to overthrow Syria's Ba'athist rulers, Damascus radio reported.

Old Party Revived

SEOUL (UPI) — The South Korean Democratic Party, ousted from power and dissolved by a military coup d'etat more than two years ago, resumed activities Thursday. It pledged to fight for an end to military rule and restoration of constitutional civilian government.

Mrs. Park Soon Chun was elected party president by unanimous vote. She was minister without portfolio in the cabinet of Premier John Chang until the government was ousted May 16, 1961.

MOSCOW (AP) — U.S., British and Soviet negotiators held their shortest session to date on a limited nuclear test ban treaty Thursday as they apparently moved toward difficult areas of the issue.

The session began late, because Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko held up the start for an hour and a half so he could give a luncheon for an East German delegation that arrived Wednesday.

An hour and 25 minutes after the meeting opened, Undersecretary of State W. Averell Harriman and Lord Hailsham, the U.S. and British chief negotiators, drove away together.

Asked how the talks were progressing, Hailsham replied: "Reasonably nicely."

New Orders

MOSCOW (UPI) — The Chinese delegation to the Sino-Soviet talks awaited fresh instructions from Peking Thursday on the Kremlin's new ideological offensive against Chinese "warmongering" and "racism."

The attempt at achieving a reconciliation between the divided Russians and Chinese was expected to resume today.

The ideological talks were overshadowed once more by the nuclear test ban negotiations between Russia, the United States and Britain.

By actively pushing the talks and publicizing them, in sharp contrast to the news blackout which attended the Sino-Soviet negotiations, diplomats said the Kremlin continued to show hostility to the Chinese position.

There was no immediate comment from the Senegalese government.

Portuguese Guinea, a tropical West African territory inhabited by mostly primitive people, is a losing proposition economically. Government expenditures exceed revenues and imports are greater than exports.

SLAVE TRADE

In the 17th and 18th centuries it was the centre of a lucrative slave trade to the Americas; now its chief products are peanuts and coconuts. With an area of 13,948 square miles, its population of more than 500,000 includes about 3,000 Europeans.

Portugal Reinforces African Garrisons

LISBON (AP) — Portugal has sent military reinforcements to its rebel-threatened African colonies, government sources said Thursday.

A government announcement earlier said African revolutionists have seized control of 15 per cent of Portuguese Guinea, on Africa's west coast.

Defence Minister Manuel Gomes d'Avila charged the rebels slipped into the West African colony from neighboring Senegal and robbed, killed and intimidated the population into helping them.

U.S. Taxes Capital

THE PRECARIOUS position in which the capitalist world is presently situated was further emphasized Thursday when President Kennedy clapped a surprise 15 per cent excise tax on U.S. purchases from abroad of foreign stocks and bonds, and announced that for the first time in history the U.S. would have to borrow—up to $300,000,000—from the International Monetary Fund to stop the transfer of foreign-held U.S. dollars into U.S. gold.

The serious nature of the new impost is, of course, that it is a straight tax on capital.

Today the U.S. has a dollar crisis, like in some respects to the one Canada faced just over a year ago, and the U.S. like Canada is applying remedial measures that, at best, can be little more than a temporary nature.

Canada is worst affected of the 22 industrialized countries by Mr. Kennedy's new tax. Last year the U.S. investors placed $1,200,000,000 in Canada and this year according to Mr. Kennedy the rate is running at $1,500,000,000 per annum.

One of the straws that finally broke the back of Canadian-U.S. international financing was the sale earlier this year by the province of Quebec of $300,000,000 worth of hydro bonds in the United States to pay for the acquisition of various privately-owned hydro companies in that province.

Although Mr. Kennedy hopes that his excise tax will be temporary—not beyond the end of 1965—it will probably create massive new problems of financing for the Peace and Columbia projects as well as many other Canadian developments.

It is somewhat ironic that a few weeks ago Mr. Gordon sought to put a tax on U.S. investments in Canada, which had to be withdrawn under pressure from his budget, and now Mr. Kennedy is doing largely the same thing, only in this case the tax will go into the U.S. treasury instead of into Ottawa's.

There is perhaps just one silver lining to the whole dark cloud and that is that Mr. Kennedy's action will bring us face-to-face with the stark reality that our own international balance of payments is being kept in line only by the short-sighted policy of borrowing funds from other countries.

When the flow of U.S. dollars is restricted, as it certainly will be, Canada in turn will face another dollar crisis, and this time perhaps the balance will have to be restored domestically, and perhaps painfully, rather than by the expediency of borrowing from international funds.

Defence in the U.K.

ANOTHER change in the traditions of Britain is involved in the new defence structure announced for the United Kingdom. Portfolios of long style and standing will disappear.

No longer will there be a Secretary for War, a First Lord of the Admiralty, or a Secretary for Air, the first two especially of supreme titular status in the ancient hierarchy of the British military menage. The top ministerial post of this nature will be that of Minister of Defence, in line with the arrangement common to Canada and the United States.

This change is more apparent than real, since for the last two decades these titular holders have been subordinate to the defence minister, who is reinvested with the senior authority under the new set-up. As of now these three secretaries, while members of the government, do not rank as members of the inner circle known as the cabinet.

They will, however, still retain control of their departments but in the minor role of ministers of state under the central authority of the defence minister, himself a member of the cabinet.

What is more sweeping in the reorganization of military direction is the creation of a new defence council and the decision to house all three service ministries under one roof, with the idea of assuring central and unified control of defence planning and a single appraisal of all strategic needs. In short, instead of three competitive services there will be but one overall military agency, although each will continue as a separate entity in the field of operations.

This is said to have long been the goal of Earl Mountbatten, the present chairman of the chiefs of staff, and he will be the principal professional head of the new structure and the top military adviser to the minister of defence.

He will thus be the most important military figure in the new hierarchy, and apparently one whose influence and power will be immense. This caps what by any reckoning has been the most spectacular career of any action of royalty in modern times.

Sweet and Sour

IT IS GRATIFYING to learn that this province is in such splendid shape financially as to have had a $40,600,000 accumulated surplus at the end of its fiscal year last March 31 when none was anticipated. Gratifying, that is, unless one takes the miserable view that this means British Columbians were taxed $40,600,000 too much last year to enable Premier Bennett to present such a pleasing picture.

The suspicion must exist that the premier had this picture in mind long ago. He would not be the first finance minister to over-estimate expenditures and under-estimate revenues apparently for such purpose, although the accumulation setting a new record for the province would place him in championship class. And if the miscalculations—apart from economies introduced during the year—were simply errors, Mr. Bennett has shown himself an extraordinarily inept budgeter. In private business, his job would be in danger had he proved so far wrong in his estimates.

Just where the premier went wrong in his anticipations, to provide the province with this windfall, remains to be seen when public accounts become available later in the year. It will be interesting to see how he managed to save $21,600,000 on the spending side of the ledger, and equally to see where nearly $26,000,000 in unexpected revenues came from.

But more interesting still perhaps is a question that may not be answered so soon: how is Mr. Bennett going to use the surplus? Some of it will have gone for further bridge payments, but one can hardly doubt that it is growing again. Will he decrease taxation? Will he pay off more of the indirect debt?

Or is it just possible that he would build it up, pleasant miscalculation on miscalculation, to celebrate Social Credit's 20th anniversary in office with a tax-free year?

Thinking Aloud

... of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax ...
By TOM TAYLOR

DON'T think it's quite fair of the B.C. Automobile Association, in projecting the old argument about who drives a car best, man or woman, to dig back into the records of 1902.

And come up with Canada's first recorded car accident—involving a female driver! For one thing she'd be entangled with long skirts, and long gloves too, I suppose, accessories not designed for the motor age. And for another the collision was minor compared with today's hazards.

She smacked into two horse-drawn vehicles in Toronto, presumably at ten miles an hour or so, and maybe it was the dobbie who didn't stop at the traffic light, if there was a traffic light, which there wouldn't be.

I will say for myself that the young matrons I see behind the wheel do go along the streets at a spanking pace, and the older ones display a blitheness of confidence that makes me envious, as well sometimes as giving me the jitters.

But then, like the chaps ungallant enough to rake up old scores, I am not a female. I could be biased.

Anyway I notice that in Quebec this week a young miss from Ontario won the national teenage safe driving championship, beating out a B.C. teen-ager, male.

Which perhaps helps to offset this scanning of ancient newspapers.

I'd say that milady was bold, in the forefront of female emancipation, even to get behind the wheel in 1902.

A NOTHER reach into the past, a forty years and more before a motor car ever began to change civilization, comes from a reader who in the course of his early days knew a man who marched with Sherman, another who walked from Kabul to Kandahar, and a few more of that ilk.

I think perhaps I should now roll up this tapestry of history and put it away. I began it with personally acquiring a vicarious link with Nelson, and it has been interesting to hear from readers of the ties that bind them to figures and events of olden times.

But we are creeping too close to our own era, rather than revealing links that go far, far back.

Now if someone produces a continuous even if tenuous connection with, say, Henry the Eighth's, that will really be something.

And open the door I am now closing, with thanks to all those who have salvaged this discussion with their contributions.

THE foregoing correspondent does not append his name, by the way, although it would be safe with me, but he is a courteous old gentleman, and he gives an unusual reason for remaining anonymous.

He writes: "I am not signing my name to this because I believe a man's name should only be in the paper twice; when he is married and when he is dead, unless he has performed some great feat of daring or discovered a miraculous medicine which would be a great boon to mankind."

I am afraid if this were the absolute rule newspapers would be in a bad way, and there wouldn't be any for my reader to write to. And what would happen then to politicians, pink tea hostesses, sports heroes, etc., not to mention individuals like yours truly.

From the Scriptures
Set a watch, O Lord, before my mouth; and keep the door of my lips.—Psalm, 141:2.

Political Promotion

By STANLEY KARNOW from Quenoy

BARELY more than a mile away from Communist China, the tiny Chinese Nationalist island of Quenoy is probably the most fortified area in the world. Its camouflaged artillery emplacements bristle with big guns, and its white sand beaches are cluttered with barbed wire. The garrison of some 65,000 men lives underground in an elaborate labyrinth of caves and tunnels 500 feet under rock.

So phenomenal is this stronghold that, with Chinese Nationalist encouragement, it is rapidly becoming one of the major tourist attractions of the Far East.

During the past year, visitors from 73 countries have come to Quenoy, at the rate of about 1,000 a month. They include African diplomats, Singapore students, blue-haired American clubwomen and a newspaper publisher from Saudi Arabia replete in robe and surghashes. This tourist promotion is frankly political.

Quenoy's commanding general—who insists that his name be kept secret—admits that he doesn't expect the Chinese Communists to capture the island by force. He fears, however, that Quenoy might be traded away in some kind of international deal.

"The more guests we welcome," he explains, "the more publicity we get. And publicity adds to our strength. Many people who thought we should withdraw from Quenoy have changed their minds after their visit here."

Amplified with slick brochures, maps and colored postcards, the tourist to Quenoy starts with the sensation that he is heroically sticking his head into the jaws of Red China. The tension begins with the flight across the Formosa Strait. The aircraft is a battered old C-46 of Second World War vintage that flies at a height of only a few hundred feet to avoid Communist radar detection.

One fully expects to see puffs of anti-aircraft fire as the plane approaches the China coast, but the trip is smooth and uneventful, and soon the aircraft is touching down on a fine concrete strip. The visitor hardly has time to catch his breath before his guide, a Chinese army colonel, hands him a new collection of brochures and whisks him away for the tour.

It is a rigorous program. At 0910 the tourist is shown a 155-millimetre cannon, and, 15 minutes later, he is in the bowels of a deep tunnel, looking at crates described as ammunition. By 10 o'clock he is on a hilltop that affords a superb view of mainland China, and, 20 minutes later, he is in an immense theatre blasted out of solid rock.

When completed, the theatre will contain 1,400 seats, each of which can be converted into a hospital bed.

There is no industry, and all consumer goods are imported, often from what seems an unnecessarily great distance. Beer, for instance, is brought from Belgium, although there are perfectly good breweries in Mexico next door.

There is a reasonably high rate of literacy, due to a good primary school system, but facilities for secondary school education are very limited.

Due to the country's economic backwardness it derives a great part of its income from grants from Britain. In these circumstances Guatemala's claim to the territory has only been seen as a question of prestige. I have never met a Guatemalteco who has been to B.H. and still wanted to claim it.

Nor do most British Hondurans have any great love for their Guatemalan neighbors (though they like Mexico, and make shopping expeditions there).

Fortified Tourist Attraction

By STANLEY KARNOW from Quenoy

The psychological warfare centre is a low building with two wings. In one wing are the materials sent by the Chinese Nationalists to the mainland; in the other are the merchandise sent by the Chinese Communists to Quenoy. Using balloons, bamboo floats and bottles, the Nationalists send pamphlets, toothpaste, canned foods and safe-conduct passes to the mainland.

"Our pamphlets tell the truth, but the Communist pamphlets are nothing but lies," explains the colonel in charge. He also demonstrates other vivid comparisons. The Nationalist toothbrushes are new, the Communist toothbrushes used; the Nationalist toothbrushes used; the Nationalist canned goods are in shiny tins, the Communist tins are rusted. A visitor points out that the tins sent by the Nationalists into China are of excellent quality and asks: "Wouldn't people on the other side be considered suspect if seen wearing new clothes?"

The colonel's English falters, and, after lengthy explanations, he concludes that, yes, that is true, and people on the mainland wear these new clothes secretly.

Before another question can be posed, the tourist is handed a balloon carrying an anti-Communist message. He releases it, and the balloon floats aloft hopefully. And the visitor, checking his watch, is driven away to the loud speaker station.

The loudspeaker, one of four on the Quenoy island complex, is precisely 2,500 yards away from the Communist-held island of Chou Yu, which also contains a loud speaker facing the Nationalists. When the wind is with them, the Nationalist announcements about anti-Communist slogans; when the wind changes, the Communists shout anti-Nationalist slogans.

If he is fortunate, the tourist may experience a Communist shelling at Quenoy. These days, the shells contain propaganda leaflets, and they come over for a few hours only on odd days of the week. The last time the Communists used explosives was in June, 1960, when President Eisenhower was visiting Formosa. They fired 174,754 rounds in two days, and it was considered the most impressive salute ever given a chief of state.

By noon, the visitor is on his way to an underground banquet hall, where the Quenoy garrison officers have arranged a splendid lunch.

Within a half hour, the visitor is again out in the blinding sunlight, seeing the middle school, the agricultural experimental station, the ceramics factory, the local newspaper office, and then into more tunnels, caves and underground warrens.

Whether or not he has been convinced that Quenoy is defensible or strategically valuable, the weary tourist, winding his way back to Formosa on the evening flight, cannot but be impressed. And his guide assures him that he will come back to Quenoy some day.

"When we have conquered mainland China," he is told, "Quenoy is going to be a tremendous tourist resort. We'll get the barbed wire off the beaches and clear the surrounding waters of mines. Next time, don't forget to bring your bathing suit."

Age-Old Fallacy

JAMES Morton's recent letter treats of love as ending, warring. Possibly—if love and war were separate entities. But they exist along with all else. And we cannot embrace one thing alone. Opposites can't be destroyed—only banished from sight.

The pantheist-all-understanding peace is persona; and has no bearing on the national scene except to illustrate that men fail to recognize himself in his fellow man. Collectively, he differentiates. And he doesn't see Christ in all.

We have had to go to war to recognize oneness, to see that killing each other, we kill ourselves. In this sense we have loved with guns rather than with butter.

Maybe now we can love as brothers. See our own reflection can be at fault. That looking in the mirror, we find only peace! And that war is an age-old fallacy, involved to defeat a supposed enemy.

As the truth portrays, Cain killed Abel with all else besides.

Our Readers' Views

That "whatever Uncle Sam wants, Uncle Sam gets."

In addition to water storage dams on the Columbia river in British Columbia, Uncle Sam desires improved traffic communications to the state of Alaska.

Our geographical location seems to be our wonderful good fortune and our B.C. citizens will joyfully welcome great dams, railways and highways. But our citizens will also be definitely hopeful and wishful that the huge, tremendous debts incurred will not prove disastrous.

It is conceivable that loans to service these debts could cripple our present and future prosperity. The products of forests, fish, metals and oil are not inexhaustible and ought not to be too heavily mortgaged to accommodate the immediate needs of Uncle Sam.

Malaysia

Delay Feared

By ED MEAGHER
from Tokyo

INDONESIA'S return to a hostile position toward Malaysia could bring about the downfall of the proposed new Federation of Malaysia.

President Sukarno's renewed opposition probably was provoked by Malaysia's Prime Minister Tunku Abdul Rahman who predicted what he thought would be the strategy Indonesia will use at the July 30-August 2 "summit" meeting in Manila.

At this meeting, the Tunku, Sukarno and President Diosdado Macapagal of The Philippines will try and work out differences regarding the proposed federation.

The Malaysian prime minister was quoted in London as saying that Brunei's refusal to join the Malaysian federation had strengthened Indonesia's claim that the North Borneo territories were being pushed into the proposed new nation against their will.

The projected Federation of Malaysia was to have comprised Malaya, Singapore and the three British-protected territories of North Borneo, Sarawak and Brunei which border Indonesia.

Brunei withdrew from the scheme but Britain formally signed over her rights to North Borneo and Sarawak preparatory to their joining the federation scheduled to come into being next Aug. 31.

The Tunku reportedly said Brunei had asserted she would join only if the principle of accession by free will were granted—a wish that had been respected. Brunei has a population of about 80,000.

But the remark that apparently brought down the wrath of Sukarno was the Tunku predicting that Indonesia in Manila would contend that if the other North Borneo territories had also had the opportunity to choose, they would have preferred to stay out.

"We shall now be faced with Indonesia's demand for a United Nations-controlled referendum in Sarawak and North Borneo," the Tunku said. "They will say a referendum is necessary because of Brunei's refusal to join the new federation."

President Sukarno, who had dropped his confrontation policy against Malaysia following a surprisingly friendly meeting here with the Tunku last June 1, revived it two days after the prediction in London.

While North Borneo observers believe that North Borneo and Sarawak residents preferred to remain under British authority they willingly accepted the federation proposal as feasible for their future prosperity and security as the best alternative to British rule.

The Philippines is involved in the Malaysia dispute because she claims sovereignty over North Borneo.

The strategy of Indonesia and possibly the Philippines as well would seem to be to force Malaysia to accept the holding of a plebiscite among the northern Borneo people prior to proclamation of the new federation.

Such a referendum would delay the new nation's formation by perhaps as long as a year—a waiting period that could well see the destruction of the Malaysia scheme.

The danger of a referendum in such underdeveloped, largely illiterate nations, is that the only genuinely well organized political organizations are Communist-directed.

These disciplined and experienced groups could be expected to divide and overwhelm majority oppositions.

At the meetings of foreign ministers from the Philippines, Indonesia and Malaysia last month in Manila agreement was reached in principle that the will of the northern Borneo people should be determined by a United Nations or other impartial representative acceptable to all three nations.

Since the meeting ended, however, the Philippines and Indonesia have both hinted unofficially that a full-scale referendum was meant while Malaysia has insisted that a mere sampling of opinion by a representative was implied by the agreement.

Extended delay in proclaiming Malaysia, observers believe, would give opposing forces, including Communist China, vital time to propagandize carefully sown discontent among the people.

The planted trouble almost certainly would be racial. Overseas Chinese versus Malay. Although the two groups have been effectively welded in the creation of prosperous and progressive Malaysia, feeling persists against the Malays in predominantly Chinese Singapore and by the Malays against the Chinese throughout the rest of the Malaysia area.

Each fears a take-over by the other.

Perhaps, as many observers believe, the British have been premature in launching the Malaysia scheme.

It would seem now that although Britain may give up these colonies in name her military presence will be needed in the area for years to come.

BACKGROUND

Discrimination—in Israel

By ELIAH SIMON
from Jerusalem

Israel, whose Jewish population has a confronted discrimination for centuries, is now faced with the problem among its own people.

Racial tensions and charges of discrimination have resulted from the immigration into Israel of thousands of dark-skinned Oriental Jews from parts of Asia and Africa.

One social scientist recently described Israel as becoming a nation "divided into Europeans who 'run the show' and Orientals, who are guided, spoon-fed and shepherded by European managers."

The European Jews who helped found the nation and held most of its key political and business positions now are a minority—about 40 per cent of Israel's population.

In recent years, the European Jews and the small number of Arabs have been joined by an influx of Jews from the Moslem nations of the Middle East and northern Africa.

Most of these immigrants are backward by western standards—their way of life in many cases was that of the small primitive Middle Eastern village.

Handicapped by little modern education and few technical skills, they have in Israel become "brewers of wood and drawers of water."

Friction between European and Oriental Jews often results simply because of the difference in backgrounds. For example, a Polish immigrant and his Moroccan neighbor recently were brought before a judge for fighting. It developed that their wives had quarrelled over who was to sweep the staircase of their apartment house. The Moroccan had never lived in an apartment house—before and could not understand why they should have to keep their staircase clean.

Israel's political leaders are increased education as a key to the solution of the nation's "racial problem." Education Minister Abba Eban recently spoke of a "grave national crisis" developing if the cultural gap between the two Israels is not closed.

The problem is being given priority second only to the nation's concern over its military security against its Arab neighbors.

Marxist Group Calls for Revolutionary Party

Moscow-Peking Rift Spreads to Italy

By ROBERT T. HARTMANN, from Rome

In open defiance of Communist leader Palmiro Togliatti, the pro-Peking faction of the Italian Communist Party has called for "a revolutionary party . . . that will fight for the overthrow of the bourgeois state."

The move by the pro-China group, which calls itself "Viva il Leninismo," reflected the Sino-Soviet split that the two giants of the Communist world have been trying to mend in Moscow.

Centered in the ancient university town of Padua, near Venice, the group issued a public statement in reply to a lengthy "open letter" that had appeared in Pravda.

In Pravda the Soviet Communist Party had complained that "Chinese authorities have been encouraging the activities of ex-Communist members of the Padua federation who have printed leaflets with the provocative intent of causing a revolutionary uprising."

The Padua statement replied:

"Our party represents a group which takes the same position as the Chinese Communist Party, not because some of us were expelled from the Italian Communist Party in August, 1962, but because we are a Marxist-Leninist party."

"The time has come in Italy to create a revolutionary party, that is, a Marxist-Leninist party, that will fight for the overthrow of the bourgeois state, the establishment of the dictatorship of the proletariat and for the creation of a socialist society."

Communist party headquarters in Rome, staunchly pro-Soviet, tried to brush off the pro-China faction as "a very small group whose activities already have been condemned by the executive body of the Communist Party of Italy."

Nevertheless, a special meeting of the party secretariat was held to deal with the split. The middle-of-the-road Roman newspaper Il Messaggero estimated that the pro-China element among Italian Communist numbers about 30,000. The party's hard-core membership is usually estimated at 1,500,000 to 1,700,000.

As the most powerful Communist party operating in the free world, Italy's pro-Soviet party is essential to the Soviet claim of world leadership in the Marxist movement.

Military Aid Hope Hinted

Pakistan Looks to China

By JOSEPH MACWHEEN

If Red China is having difficulties with the Soviet Union, it appears to be gaining a measure of influence with another, pro-Western, country: Pakistan.

Pakistan has been sending out warnings of unhappiness over Western policies for some time and the latest of these was a parliamentary speech by Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto.

The immediate cause of Pakistan's discontent is the military aid provided by Western countries—especially the United States and Britain—to India because of its border troubles with Communist China.

Without naming names, Bhutto left the clear implication in his speech this week that he expects Peking will come to Pakistan's aid if it should be attacked by India over disputed Kashmir or for any other reasons.

Another indication of growing accord between Red China and

Discontent
Still India

Pakistan is the proposal for an airline link between the two countries. The United States, it is believed, raised Pakistani hackles by saying such a move would be "an unfortunate breach of free world solidarity."

This came on top of Pakistan's standing protest that Western military supplies to India might be used not only for defense against Red China but for defense against Pakistan, regardless of what provisions were made against it.

It is apparent Pakistan feels that although through the years it has been a committed ally of the West—being a member of two military pacts—the U.S. and Britain are willing to ignore her arguments against India.

India, which remained aloof from both the Southeast Asia Treaty Organization and the Central Treaty Organization, was able to obtain massive Western aid merely by—in Pakistani eyes—saying please.

President Kennedy and Prime Minister Macmillan had at first said that arms aid to India would be short-term and limited to $120,000,000. But at their recent meeting they decided to give long-term military and economic aid.

Observers in London feel it is not surprising that in these circumstances Pakistan should seek some support in Peking, or try to give the West and India the impression it is doing so.

What Is Matter?

Battle of the 'BEVS'

By IRVING S. BENGEISDORF from Palo Alto, Calif.

More than 400 scientists representing countries carrying out research in high-energy physics, recently conferred at Stanford University on the structure of the nucleus.

Nucleons, by definition, are both protons and neutrons—the building blocks of matter found in the nucleus of atoms. The conference, therefore, dealt with a question as old as history—of what is matter ultimately made?

The ancient Greeks considered matter to consist of only four things—air, earth, water and fire. Modern chemistry has increased this number to 92 different kinds of atoms of chemical elements.

Modern physics then showed that the 92 different atoms of the chemist could in turn be reduced to three particles—protons, neutrons, and electrons.

Recent experiments in high-energy physics have shown, however, that the proton and neutron are not "elementary" particles, but are themselves complex structures.

This has led Dr. Geoffrey F. Chew, a physicist at the University of California, to suggest that the idea of elementary particles in nuclear physics should be discarded—that protons and neutrons represent nothing more than special levels of energy in a complicated layer of many energy levels which make up matter.

The observation that protons are complex structures may lead to a completely new source of incredible energy in the future.

As pointed out at the conference by Dr. V. S. Barashenkov of the theoretical nuclear studies division of the Soviet Joint Institute for Nuclear Research, the more deeply the atom is probed, the more energy will be extracted.

Use of the outer electronics of an atom provides the usual chemical energy obtained from the burning of coal, oil, wood, etc. The next step down into the atom, after one gets past the outer electronics, is the atomic nucleus. Use of the nucleus, as a whole, provides fission energy, either controlled as a reactor generating electricity, or uncontrolled as the A-bomb.

To go one step deeper, the possible use of only part of the nucleus, such as the proton or neutron, may provide an even greater source of future energy.

To really find out what a proton is made of requires sophisticated, complex, and expensive machines known as accelerators. And the more information one wants, the more it costs and the greater the amount of energy required to perform the experiment.

Thus, the University of California's pioneering, six-billion-electron-volt (BEV), high-energy machine at the Lawrence Radiation Laboratory, Berkeley, soon was surpassed by the 10-BEV Soviet accelerator. The latter, in turn, then bowed to the 30-BEV machine presently in operation at both the European Organization for Nuclear Research at Geneva and the Brookhaven National Laboratory at Long Island.

A 70-BEV accelerator currently is being constructed about 60 miles outside of Moscow.

It is these accelerators, or atom smashers, that formed the primary topic of discussion at the conference.

Quotable Quotes

Bridge . . . bingo—what is the difference? Except that in the old days only a few women could afford to play bridge, and now a lot can afford to play bingo.—Harold Macmillan.

The ideologies of those who belong to the United Nations are certainly multiple and diverse, and the Catholic Church regards them with due attention. But the convergence of so many people, so many races, so many states in a single organization, intended to avert the evils of war and to favor the good things of peace is a fact which the Holy See considers as corresponding to its concept of humanity, and included within the area of its spiritual mission in the world.—Pope Paul VI.

Ottawa Hires Legal 'Eye' For Waterfront Advice

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is appointing a legal private eye to see if violence and lawlessness on the waterfront warrants criminal action in the courts.

Ship Firm Wants Action

TORONTO (CP)—J. D. Leitch, president of the Upper Lakes Shipping Company of Toronto, called on government and labor leaders Thursday to take a hand in the Great Lakes shipping dispute.

In a telegram Thursday to Prime Minister Pearson and External Affairs Minister Paul Martin, and to President Claude Jodoin of the Canadian Labor Congress, Mr. Leitch asked for intervention "making it possible for us to operate competitively and unobscured in American ports."

He said his company's vessel, the Howard L. Shaw, was still being boycotted in Chicago despite efforts by the United States National Labor Relations Board and despite the recommendations of Mr. Justice T. G. Norris in his report on the situation tabled in the House Monday.

Justice Minister Chevrier told the Commons Thursday that special counsel—probably a top-ranking lawyer—will be named immediately to review the facts and advise whether charges should be laid.

DELVE INTO TRANSCRIPT

First job of the lawyer would be to delve into the 4,000,000-word transcript of testimony recorded by Mr. Justice T. G. Norris during his seven-month investigation of Great Lakes labor strife.

Then the lawyer could follow up by searching out witnesses, collecting affidavits and compiling evidence.

NORRIS PROPOSAL

Mr. Justice Norris said in his report the special counsel should be named to determine whether charges should be laid against Hal C. Banks, burly boss of the Seafarers' International Union of Canada (IUC), his executive vice-president, New Zealand-born Leonard J. McLaughlin and "others."

ACTS ON REPORT

Mr. Chevrier said the government was acting on the Norris recommendation and was assigning the special lawyer—so far, unnamed—to the task of weighing evidence for possible charges on:

1. Conspiracy to prevent by unlawful means persons from working in the business of shipping.

2. Conspiracy to commit indictable offences, particularly offences involving violence.

3. Violations of the Industrial Relations and Disputes Investigation Act, which bans union intimidation and coercion.

Mr. Chevrier said he expected consultation with provincial authorities at an "appropriate state" in the investigation. Although the federal government could press certain charges, most criminal acts come within provincial jurisdiction.

Norris Report Studied On International Basis

OTTAWA (CP)—Federal labor experts are weighing the recommendations of the Norris report in the light of international labor conventions of the United Nations. It was learned Thursday.

For that reason, the waterfront unions on the Great Lakes, Mr. Justice T. G. Norris urged the federal government to impose an immediate trusteeship on sailors' unions, ban the formation of new marine unions and bar sailors and engineers from belonging to the same union.

In one sense, these proposals could be opposed on the grounds that they violate international labor standards and principles as set by the International Labor Organization.

But the government could contend that it was implementing the Norris proposals to preserve and protect the very principles it might be violating.

TWO CLAUSES CITED

Experts say two ILO conventions have a bearing on the Norris report. They are:

1. The 1948 convention guaranteeing workers the right of freedom of association and protecting their right to organize.

2. The 1949 convention guaranteeing workers the right to organize and to bargain collec-

Canada's Alouette May Stay Up For 2,000 Years

OTTAWA (CP) — Dr. A. H. Zimmerman, chairman of the defence research board, estimated Friday that the Canadian earth satellite Alouette may remain in orbit for 2,000 years. Highest previous estimate was 500 years.

As Dr. Zimmerman presented a brief to the Commons defence committee, the Alouette, launched Sept. 28, 1962, was completing its 3,000th orbit 600 miles above the earth.

He said the satellite has travelled 115,000,000 miles, has responded to 10,400 commands from ground stations and has sent back to earth 335,000 long-range or magnetic tape recordings.

He said 63 per cent of the satellite's power remains so that it may continue to send back information on the ionosphere for two years instead of the one year originally planned.

Four more Canadian satellites will be launched aboard American rockets in the next five years.

The committee met at 10:30 a.m. after returning early Friday by air from North American Air Defence Command headquarters at Colorado Springs, Colo., where it received a one-day briefing.

Research Cutback Forecast

OTTAWA (UPI) — Defence Research Board chairman Dr. A. H. Zimmerman warned Thursday the board's quantity and quality of work will drop if austerity measures imposed a year ago are allowed to continue.

Zimmerman told the Commons defence committee substantial cuts in the board's annual budget would force key personnel who "would take a very long time to replace" to leave the board.

He said it was the government's responsibility to decide policy and say what level of research the board should carry out, but warned the quality of work would suffer under substantial spending cutbacks.

He estimated 50 of about 500 personnel were "key" people.

Case of Girl

Magistrate Ponders Decision

A case of contributing to juvenile delinquency was adjourned until July 25 in city magistrate's court Thursday to allow Magistrate William Ostler to consider a ruling.

The case involves a juvenile girl who has been living with a man in Victoria but admitted to the court she was carrying another man's child.

The problem is whether, by having committed one delinquency, the girl becomes more of a delinquent by continuing to commit further delinquencies.

RCMP RAID

RCMP narcotics squad in a raid at a Cook Street address recently discovered the girl living with a Victoria man. He was charged with contributing to juvenile delinquency.

The accused told the court he had not known the girl was 17. He intended to marry her when his divorce came through. The couple were living together with the approval of the girl's father.

EIGHT AGE

Magistrate Ostler pointed out that while the accused had not known the girl was 17 when he met her in Vancouver he admitted she told her right age when they arrived in Victoria and still they lived together.

Victoria Boy 'Critical' After Car-Bus Crash

Still in critical condition following a car-bus collision near Chilliwack Wednesday is Arthur Sjostrom, 16, of Glen Lake, passenger in the car driven by his brother Barry, 18.

The boys' mother, Mrs. Ida Sjostrom, Victoria, is in satisfactory condition. Both are in Chilliwack hospital. Barry was unhurt.

CAR, BUS COLLIDE

The Sjostrom car was in collision with a bus taking 48 children aged six to 12 from Agassiz to swimming lessons at Sardin.

None of the children in the bus was seriously injured.

One, Mary Jones, 8, of Agassiz, suffered a broken arm. Five others were treated for minor cuts and bruises and were sent home.

Bus driver Wade Whorley, 48,

ARTHUR SJOSTROM
... hurt in crash

of Agassiz, said the children were thrown around like peas in a box when the collision occurred.

"It was awful," he said. "A lot of them started screaming ... I guess they were in shock."

SECOND WARNING

He said there was only a second warning before the crash. Passing motorists transported the children back to their homes in Agassiz.

Agassiz police said the Sjostrom car was westbound on the old Trans-Canada Highway.

The accident occurred at the Agassiz-Roadside Bridge cutoff. The bus plunged into a ditch after the impact and the car was spun around.

Police had to pry open the battered car to extract the Sjostroms from it.

OUTDOORS

with Alec Merriman

Fishing for salmon is reported good anywhere on Vancouver Island, but in the Sooke to Victoria waters it is tremendous. . . sports fishermen are leaving the beaches with sack fulls, limit and near limit catches.

Just about everything that floats is being called into action to fish the spectacular run of humpies, coho, and in the last couple days big springs that have hit the waters from Sooke to Albert Head with a smattering overflowing to Esquimalt, Victoria and Oak Bay waters.

This weekend brings lowest tides of the year at 9:04 a.m. Saturday and 9:46 Sunday at Sooke; 9:34 a.m. Saturday, and 10:16 Sunday at Victoria. . . and this provides launching problems for those who have boats they have trailed all the way into the water.

Boathouse owners have had a big run on the very few rental boats that are available.

Some regular anglers have turned guides for the big run and are offering their boats and guide service at reasonable rates, just so more people can get in on the fun.

At times the tide-ridden waters can be treacherous for the inexperienced boatmen. Becher and Pedder Bays provide best shelter on windy days.

Here is a rundown on launching and boat rental facilities.

Oak Bay Marina has a fleet of aluminum rental boats and there is an all-tide launching ramp at Cattle Point.

The James Bay Anglers' ramp at the outer harbor is suitable for all-tide launching. This was built by volunteer labor and it is customary to take out a membership if you use the ramp, just to help with upkeep.

West Bay Marina in Esquimalt, at the foot of Head Street, has boat rentals.

Esquimalt Anglers' Association has launching facilities at foot of Kinross Street, near the end of Lamson. Here again a $1 membership should be purchased.

You can launch boats from either end of Esquimalt Lagoon, but not big boats.

Taylor Beach is suitable for launching small boats at high tides, but you have to carry the boats over the beach.

Sand and Sea Resort at Weir's Beach, adjacent to the William Head fishing has a couple of boats for rent and a wooden launching ramp which takes you over the soft sand on to hard-packed sand on which you can drive a car to the water-edge.

Pedder Bay Marina has five rental boats which are already booked up until Monday. The concrete ramp is good, except at the lowest of tides.

Perry Brown of Becher Bay has no rental boats, but the concrete launching ramp is fine for all tides.

Andy Davidson of Davidson's Small Boat Rentals on Kaitum Road, on the Sooke Basin, has added to his fleet of cabin rental boats and some Sooke anglers are renting their boats and guide service from his wharves. Boat launching from this location is a high tide business, and out of the question at low tides.

Sunny Shores Resort on the Sooke Basin has a concrete ramp. There is a new launching-ramp, which we have not yet seen, on Sooke Harbor and it is possible for a few smaller boats to launch at Whiffen Spit.

Max Rudiger of Sooke Bay Resort (just before Otter Point) has four rental boats, guide service and a concrete launching ramp.

John Parker of Juan de Fuca Auto Court has no boats, but he has a good launching ramp and tenting facilities adjacent to the fishing grounds. Ramp will take all boats at higher tides, but is difficult for bigger boats below the three-foot-tide level.

We have been getting our fill of humpies, coho and big springs within a couple of hundred yards of our Gordon Beach cabin. The method has been eight to six ounces of weight, 15 feet from the lure, and 15 to 20 pulls out, a fast troll, almost bucktail speed, a red hotchick-knotchie over a Minnow-Teaser or Krippled Minnow, or a Super Strip-Teaser on a short 24-inch leader behind a Roy Smith-type or Silver Horde flasher.

But they have been hitting plugs. Tom Mack spoons, or just about anything that is thrown in the water. We haven't clicked on bucktails, although by King Fishermen entries we see others have.

Campbell River area fishing is good for coho in the Cape Mudge-Bell Bay-Shelter Point waters and tye and big springs are showing in the Tyee Pool waters. Coon Bay has been giving up blues and jacks, bucktail fly fishing has been good at Qualicum where both springs and coho are being taken; Gray Rock to Portler Pass waters have been good for blues and grilae; Arnie Pass and East Point have been producing coho, jacks and the odd large spring; Cowichan Bay has been spotty, but big springs and some coho are showing there and jacks below the power line in Sanium Narrows; Saanich Inlet has been spotty, but is still giving up 20 to 25-pound springs, some coho and plenty of under-sized grilae.

Canadian Shooters Retain Field Trophy

BISLEY, England (CP)—Although scores were higher this year than last, Canada retained the Field Memorial Cup Thursday in the overseas team match at the National Rifle Association Championships.

The Canadians won by just about the same margin as last year over Germany. The only opposition to the Canadians last year was Germany but this year Jersey also competed.

The 12-man teams fired seven shots each at 200, 300 and 400 yards, with Canada picking up 1,187 points out of a possible 1,260; Germany 1,161 and Jersey 1,143.

Six more Canadians qualified for places in the second stage of the Queen's Prize. They competed in a shoot-off to fill the last 81 places in the semi-final 200. Thirteen Canadians qualified Wednesday for today's second stage.

Thursday's qualifiers are Sgt. J. R. Hedger and Cadet Capt. D. M. Jarvis of the Canadian Army Cadets; L. Cpl. J. Mattheys of the army; Cpl. C. B. Williams of the RCAF; and two members of the Dominion of Canada Rifle Association team, S. Sgt. F. Jeremy of Montreal and PO L. A. Williams of Winnipeg.

Turley Fired

Bob Turley, 32, one of best pitchers in baseball five years ago when with New York Yankees, was given unconditional release by Los Angeles Angels Thursday. He had a 2-7 record, but two wins shutouts and a 3.30 earned run average when released.

Guest-Less Ruths Head for Windup

Island Babe Ruth baseball playoffs resume tonight, but without the guest that officials have been trying to line up.

Unknown Pro's Ace Sparks Leading 66

DALLAS (AP)—A nervous young expectant father, Dick Hart of Hinsdale, Ill., fired a dramatic five-under-par 66, including a hole-in-one, and swept three shots ahead of the glamorous field Thursday in the opening round of the 45th Professional Golfers Association Championship.

Three of the world's ruling champions—Jack Nicklaus, left-handed Bob Charles of New Zealand and Julius Boros—were among a small cordon breathing down the obscure front runner's neck with 68s, but two prime favorites, Arnold Palmer and Gary Player, dropped well off the pace.

Golf's great money winner, Palmer, looking battle-weary and disgruntled, and the little defending titleholder from South Africa, Player, both fell eight shots back with 74s.

Palmer three-putted four greens and commented dourly afterward:

"I couldn't putt a lick—I was awful." Player, experimenting with a new grip designed to improve distance off the tee, had trouble with his drives and said, "I was lucky to get the score I did—I was miserable."

SECOND PGA ACE

Keeping one eye on the stark and the other on the more practical type of birdies, Hart, a 27-year-old assistant club professional, flashed around the 7,046-yard, par-71 Dallas Athletic Club course in 34-32, sinking his tee shot on the 216-yard 18th hole. It was the second hole-in-one in modern PGA tournament history.

"Gosh, I was numb," he said after watching his four-in-one shot on the water hole hit to the right of the pin and curve into the cup.

The brilliant round eclipsed the efforts of the rest of the 167-man field, including the holders of every one of the world's major pro championships.

Hart had a three-shot lead over an imposing list at 68 including Nicklaus, the reigning Masters champion; Charles, who won the British Open last week at St. Anne's, England; the new U.S. Open king, Julius Boros; Shelley Mayfield and Mason Rudolph.

Another shot back, were the Canadian Open champion, Doug Ford; Bruce Crampton of Australia; Tony Lema, Earl Stewart, Jr.; Chuck Condon and little-known Bernie Haas, a stay-at-home professional from Pittsburgh.

There was another cluster of players at even par 71, headed by former Open champion Gene Littler and tourist Bill Johnston but mainly made up of club instructors who seldom wander out on the tour.

Garden Notes

Iris Transformed

By M. V. CHERNUT, FRES

The newcomer to gardening seems to have the idea that the only proper time to plant anything is in the spring, and certainly the garden shops and centers foster this idea, for about the only time you see seeds and roots and shrubs offered for sale is when the gardening fever is running its highest temperature during the spring of the year. Yet there are quite a few plants that do much better when purchased and planted in the fall, and a few, including the tall bearded iris, that should always be planted or transplanted in mid-summer.

Unfortunately, the iris doesn't rate very high with most home gardeners, for they think in terms of the old-fashioned, wispy-wispy kinds, either a faded blue shade or a rather muddy yellow. It isn't generally realized that this plant has been undergoing a complete transformation of recent years, and nowadays iris roots are available in a whole rainbow range of flower colors, including deep purple, orange, copper, mahogany red, wine shades, and some really glorious salmon and pinks.

There are still far too many of the old, washed-out varieties taking up valuable space in local gardens—probably grown from a bit of root passed over the back fence by a kindly neighbor. This is the time of year to give them the old heave-ho over the back fence and go shopping for some of the glorious new orchid-like varieties, for the iris is best moved fairly soon after the blooming period is over, and most iris specialists prefer to sell or ship their roots around the end of July or early August.

It occurred to me that it might serve a useful purpose if I were to list a few kinds which have found favor in the Chesnut garden. I wouldn't be so brash as to claim these are the best varieties on the market—I don't have the space or the money to test them all—these are only some inexpensive irises which have done well in our particular soil and aspect:

BAZAAR—The best way I can describe the color is to say that it is like looking at the sun through a glass of port wine. Huge and orchid-like, with plenty of blooms. About $1.25.

LADY MOORE—Unusual and exotic, with oyster white standards and greenish-yellow falls, something like an oversize lady slipper orchid. Prominent veining in the very large flowers, with a bright patch of violet on each petal. 85 cents.

PINK FORMAL—My wife's favorite—I think it reminds her of a dress she once owned. A rich salmon pink with a glowing beard of tangerine red, and thick, waxy petals. About $1.

ZANTHA—This is one of the earliest of the all bearded iris to open its blooms in our garden. Whopping great seven-inch blooms in the clearest golden yellow. 85 cents.

BLACK DIAMOND—A very dark blue-black. Looks as if the petals had been carved out of black velvet, and very striking in flower arrangements. $1.25.

APRICOT GLOEY—An unusual combination of salmon pink, yellow and cream, with good substance to the petals. $1.25.

AEGUS PHEASANT—This is a color I have never seen before in an iris, a true burnished copper shade, gleaming like a new penny. $1.25.

BLUE SAPPHIRE—An exquisitely pure shade of blue, very clean and sparkling, and with heavily ruffled petals. $1.25.

COLOR CARNIVAL—Strawberry pink with purple veins and an orange beard. $1.25.

CLIFFS OF DOVER—I never cared much for white irises until I saw this one. Pure white without any trace of muddiness, with a high sheen to the petals and a golden throat. $1.25.

The Little World of SHEILAH GRAHAM

Burton Must Make Choice

LONDON (NANA)—Question: Would Richard Burton rather travel alone and unaccompanied to Mexico in the fall to make his Night of the Iguana film for Seven Arts Productions? Another question: Will Elizabeth Taylor allow him to? And yet another question: Hasn't Richard made arrangements for wife Sybil and their two children to visit him in Mexico? Or if he has, the whole thing makes perfect sense, or doesn't it?

While Billy Wilder was in London he signed those two great actors, Peter O'Toole and Peter Sellers, for his Sherlock Holmes-Dr. Watson movie. Billy prefers to make his films in Hollywood regardless of what the locale calls for, and the famous Holmes address in London's Baker Street will be reproduced on a Hollywood sound stage.

Maybe Kim Novak will replace Liz Taylor in The Sandpiper. Her former partner, Marty Ramsehoff, was talking to her about it in London... and it is interesting that director Henry Hathaway who was "let out" of Kim's Old Human Bondage film, should be replacing Frank Capra in Sam Bronston's Circus, which has now been postponed until the late fall in Madrid.

The papers here announced the reconciliation of Jill St. John and Lance Reventlow, but a letter from California gives me the news that she went to Palm Springs recently and saw a former boy friend.

With Rhonda Fleming no longer that way about Glenn Ford, she has been dining devotedly with Beverly Hills stockbroker Dick Elwood, who is reportedly telling friends they will wed.

They do say in the pubs and in Belgavia that another famous actor name, much in the news but not previously mentioned, will come up in the Stephen Ward-Christine Keeler case.

Nanni Loy's Four Days of Naples war thriller was received unfavorably by the London critics, but the public is flocking to see it... This raises the question of whether or not a bad review keeps the public from seeing a film. Director Stanley Kubrick, now cutting his intriguing film, Dr. Strangelove, or How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb, told me: "Half of the box office result is determined by what the picture sounds like, the rest is word of mouth and the critics count a little bit. But most people go to see a film because their friends like it."

Agent-producer Charles Feldman's case against Laurence Harvey, claiming commissions, will be a sizzler if it ever comes to court... Larry is back in London from visiting his sweetie, Mrs. Joan Cohn, in Hollywood, and is now cutting his Spanish-located film, The Ceremony.

There was a lovely big announcement in the London Daily Mail that the movie version of Oliver would have the cast to end them all—Peter O'Toole as Fagin, Richard Burton as Bill Sykes and Elizabeth Taylor as Nancy Sykes. Personally I think this would be good casting, but I am told it is just a dream on the part of author Lionel Bart.

Doctor Sidney Lumet wants Lee Remick and James Garner to star in his Lie Down in Darkness picture. Lee and James are good together in The Wheeler Dealers, and there is talk of reviving some of the William Powell-Myrna Loy Thin Man pictures for them. I am surprised the Thin Man has not yet been made into a TV series.

As far away as London, I hear that Robert Goulet was a sight for sore eyes dining at a restaurant in Los Angeles with fiancée Carol Lawrence. The handsome heart throb was wearing bloomer-type shorts, with long stockings and only his rather knobby knees showed. Robert, who can sing 24 hours a day as far as I'm concerned, will sing a duet with Ann-Margaret in Say It With Music.

Kim Novak in London with Roddy Mann, wrote her Hollywood astrologer about the correct date for their marriage. He wrote back that the stars were against the marriage. But it will have to be the sun, and the moon, before Kim changes her mind about Roddy. Meanwhile, Kim's decorator, Ruby Levitt is preparing her home in northern California for the honeymoon.

'It's a Funny Feeling'

Death Changed Her Personality

CHICHESTER, England within three minutes her brain (UPI) — "It's a funny feeling to know that you have been dead," 20-year-old Sylvia Berwick said yesterday.

Miss Berwick was "dead" for three minutes after she was knocked down by a car nearly eight months ago.

She is believed to be the first road casualty in Britain to recover from "clinical death," in which the heart stops beating but later is re-started.

Miss Berwick said she remembers nothing about the accident. The first she knew of it was when she was told about it by the doctor who revived her.

Dr. John Bullough was nearby when Miss Berwick was knocked down. He jumped from his car and ran to check her pulse and breathing, but found she was clinically dead.

"If nothing had been done might have become permanently damaged. After four she would have been irreversibly dead," he said.

Bullough told fellow doctors: "Onlookers were telling me to give up because it was no use."

"Then suddenly Sylvia gave a faint moan and about three minutes after I had begun to treat her she started breathing."

Her experience, Miss Berwick said, "has altered my personality and helped me enjoy life better. I always used to be the odd one out in crowds. Now I have become one of the crowd."

"It's not just a question of being more tolerant, that doesn't describe it. It's just that I seem to get on more easily with people," she said.

"It's good to be alive."

Merger Taken in Stride

Naval Broadships Fail to Materialize

LONDON (CP)—Defence integration isn't going to cause British seadogs to gag on their grog.

That was the answer at the Admiralty Thursday to questions about whether the proud Royal Navy is taking kindly to integration with the army and the RAF.

It was emphasized that the merger, in any case, is taking place only at the top—on the administrative side of the defence.

Some admirals, jealous of the navy's special role in the nation's tradition, could not be expected to react with joy to the changes but were reconciled to the need. Their initial reluctance was seen as part of the reason that integration hasn't happened earlier.

Chief casualty in the change will be the first lord of the admiralty, a political post now held by Lord Carrington. This will be reduced to the rank of minister of state, under the newly created secretary of state for defence.

Most famous person to hold the job in the past was Sir Winston Churchill.

On the operational side, the title of first sea lord, now held by Sir Caspar John, remains unchanged. Perhaps the most famed modern holder of this post was Earl Mountbatten, now chief of defence staff, and a wartime master of combined operations.

As for the sailors—and soldiers, for that matter—defence chiefs are convinced the administrative change will be of little or no concern.

"They have traditionally paid small attention to high staff," said one official.

"Morale must not suffer at all. Sailors are much more interested in their ship, their fleet, than in what is going on in high circles at home. After all, the integration idea isn't new, and did not hit with impact."

There has been surprisingly little public comment since Defence Minister Peter Thorneycroft announced details of the change Tuesday.

But one newspaper cartoon depicts two sentries—combining soldier, sailor and airman garb, standing before a "Pentagon" while a bedraggled car approaches. One says:

"Blimey, the supreme! Do we salute 'im, hope 'im or dance a flippin' 'empeppin'?"

Divorce Board Soon?

OTTAWA (CP)—The government is expected soon to propose a tribunal to handle divorces now granted in Quebec and Newfoundland residents by Parliament, reliable informants said Thursday.

Slaying of Negro Ruled Justifiable

MARION, Ark. (AP)—A 19-man coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide Thursday in the fatal shooting Wednesday of a 17-year-old Negro. The mother of an eight-year-old girl said the Negro molested her daughter.

The Negro, Andrew Lee Anderson, died two hours after he was chased into a field by white residents and sheriff's deputies and shot in the leg with a high-powered rifle.

Coroner T. H. McGough said the ruling was based on an Arkansas law which gives any private citizen or officer the right to attempt to capture a felon.

Molestation is a felony under Arkansas law.

Eight-Day Sit-In Smashed

CHICAGO (UPI)—Police broke up an eight-day anti-segregation sit-in at the Chicago board of education offices Thursday and carried nine demonstrators off to paddywagons.

Police picked up the seven men and two women bodily carried them to freight elevators and tossed them into paddywagons when they rejected school board president Clair Roddewig's plea to end their camp-out on the third floor of the loop building.

Leaders of the Congress of Racial Equality, which sponsored the sit-in to demand action on their charges of racial segregation in public schools, threatened to try to breach the police guard and get back into the building.

Two of the persons arrested—a man and a woman—were white.

Police Eye Racial Hot Spots

CHARLSTON, S.C. (UPI)—Police and highway patrolmen kept close watch here and at other racial hot spots Thursday where Negro leaders have promised to continue their volatile desegregation drives.

Special biracial committees working under the threat of more massive demonstrations attempted to negotiate settlements of Negro demands at Thomasville, N.C., and Savannah, Ga.

Negroes at Cambridge, Md., agreed to hold off protests in that tense fishing town while the Maryland Bar Association considers their integration demands.

About 130 highway and state law enforcement division officers were here to bolster the city's 100-man police force.

Bureau Maps Fund Drive

The vexed question of finances for the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau will be discussed by bureau directors and representatives of Island businessmen Wednesday in Nanaimo.

Representatives of chambers of commerce from throughout the Island and Gulf Islands have been invited.

Plans for a fall fund drive will be discussed and chamber delegates will be asked to give some idea how much can be expected from the business community.

Rose Street

Expropriation Asked For Road Extension

City finance committee Thursday recommended a start in expropriation proceedings to obtain a 25-foot strip of property at the rear of Holyrood House for extension of Rose Street.

It also agreed independent appraisers be retained to assist lands commission. Alfred Joyce in completing negotiations with owners of six other pieces of property.

City manager Dennis Young said the property would have

Ald. Austin Curtis, a former president of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce, voiced some public criticism of the organization Thursday.

"I may be disloyal," he said during city finance committee

AUSTIN CURTIS
... critical

discussion of a belated request from the chamber for a $2,500 grant, "but it seems to me this grant was originally made on the basis of work to be done in attracting industry."

GOAL CHANGES

"The chamber was not able to do much in this field, so then it became a grant to help in the operation of a sort of better business bureau. Now it comes along and says the money is used to attract more visitors."

Ald. Curtis added: "The city may be excused for not knowing what the grant is for."

PRETTY GOOD VALUE

Finance committee, however, agreed to recommend to city council that the grant be paid as usual this year after Mayor Wilson said the city gets "pretty good value" out of the services rendered by the chamber in answering letters of inquiry from prospective visitors.

It was also decided finance chairman Ald. Arthur Dowell and Ald. Curtis will meet shortly with chamber representatives to discuss a proposed transfer of street decorations to city ownership in full settlement for an amount of $1,318 owed by the chamber since 1961.

NOT EFFECTIVE

Mayor Wilson said the Christmas decorations used last year on downtown streets were "not very effective" and criticized grubby boxes supporting trees that became a catch-all for refuse.

"We should do this well or not at all," the mayor said. "I hope the boxes this year will be painted and kept clean so that they don't become a detriment to the festive atmosphere."

HOLLY AGAIN?

Ald. Curtis suggested bringing back the city's holly baskets at Christmas.

"Holly baskets would continue the good work done by our summer flower baskets," he said. And it would put a stop to the nuisance of vandalism directed against the Christmas tree lights."

The chamber advised the city Christmas decorations this year will cost an estimated $2,200 and suggested a 50-50 split.

Welsh Given Movie Edge Over Scots

Wales seems to be more popular with Victoria residents than Scotland, National Film Board representative Paschal O'Toole said last night.

"We had 1,200 people come to watch the Victoria International Film Festival in Beacon Hill Park the night we put on a program of Scottish movies, but the all-time record was set Wednesday when 1,450 turned up to see movies on Wales," he said.

"Next Tuesday we have movies about England and it'll be interesting to see how many turn out for that."

Films from Northern Ireland and Holland will be shown Monday while four B.C. movies will be presented Wednesday—City of Many Faces, Indian Days, Rogers Pass, Saga of the Sudburies and Cattle Ranch.

a grain of sense about rye

This is it. The best there is. Sangster rye grain. Alberta farmers near Calgary plant it in early September, harvest the following summer. Rain, snow, Arctic cold, and warming Chinook winds endow this rye with excellent health, robust character. Then ADL buys it, buys more rye grain than anyone else in Canada. For Alberta rye grain becomes fine-tasting Canadian rye whisky. Any ADL brand will prove that to you. Tell you what: ask any whisky maker how he makes rye, and from what. ### Driver Faces Trial

Death Followed Cars In 'Bit' of a Drag Race

Events in a drag race which ended in the death of 19-year-old Neil Kirby, 110 Medina, June 14, were unfolded at a preliminary hearing in Saanich magistrate's court yesterday.

Fugitive Still At Large

Still at large after more than a day's freedom is Clarence Anderson, 45, fugitive from William Head minimum security prison.

RCMP at Victoria said last night they have checked out several calls from people who thought they saw Anderson, but all have proved false alarms.

Anderson, who was serving four years for breaking and entering in Vancouver, is described as five feet, four inches in height, 132 pounds, fair complexion, brown hair, slight build.

He was last seen wearing prison garb, and is not considered dangerous.

Larry Neil, 242 Glenairde, who is charged with criminal negligence and failing to remain at the scene of an accident was committed for trial at the conclusion of the hearing. He was released on $1,000 bail.

ON ROSE STREET

Court was told the idea for the race between two cars first came up while the group of boys were parked at the White Spot Restaurant and the cars set out for Rose Street.

Waving two hands at about waist level, Allyn de Wolfe, 1018 Balmoral, who was a passenger in the Neil car, demonstrated to the court how a drag race was started. He waved as though pointing at one imaginary car with each hand.

CARS TAKE OFF

"What happens when you drop your hands?" asked Saanich prosecutor Kenneth Murphy.

"The cars take off," replied de Wolfe.

Vernon Banfield, 847 Carrie, told the court there was supposed to be a "bit of a race. We were supposed to follow the other cars," he said.

BEHIND CENTRE

He said he parked about halfway along the block and as the cars came by the Chevrolet driven by Neil was in the lead by 100 yards.

As the Neil car approached Tolmie Avenue there were two cars proceeding west on Tolmie, Banfield said. The first car went through the intersection then he (Banfield) saw headlights "swinging round like a searchlight."

Seconds later he heard a crash, he told the court.

The Neil car, police evidence disclosed earlier, collided at Tolmie with a vehicle driven on that street by Mrs. Ruth Kirkpatrick, 21, 615 Kent.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick and two passengers in the Neil car besides Kirby, suffered injuries in the crash.

Hawkins Brings Back Old Following Birds

Another step in the rehabilitation of the birds whom one follows to Victoria is expected soon.

William Hawkins, commissioner of the Victoria Visitors Bureau, said last night the bureau is expecting a newly-printed Victoria folder to be delivered within the next two weeks.

Prominently displayed on it will be the time-honored slogan, "Follow the Birds to Victoria."

Before the recent split of the old Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau into the Victoria Visitors Bureau and the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau, Mr. Hawkins soft-pedaled the "Follow the Birds" slogan in favor of one plugging Vancouver Island as "Canada's Treasure Island."

He said he did this so up-island municipalities would not feel left out.

At Gardens

Baby Seal Needs Naming

A baby hair seal, which adopted four youngsters camping on Sooke beach, became the newest tenant in the Undersea Gardens at Oak Bay yesterday.

The youngsters, Dennis, Chris and Gwen Perry of 2280 Florence, and Ron Canavan were camped on the beach Wednesday when the seal climbed into their boat.

Thursday when they went fishing it followed them.

When the youngsters returned, followed by the baby seal, they phoned Jim Land, curator of the Undersea Gardens.

At the Undersea Gardens, the seal took to the divers as if they were long lost friends.

Starting today a Name The Seal Contest will be held and Colonist readers should send their entries to the contest to Undersea Gardens, 1327 Beach Drive.

Winners of the contest will receive a season pass to the gardens.

Contest will close Sunday, July 21, at 5 p.m.

Seal of Friendship

Crash Kills Youth

Passing Lane Crash Takes Life

A young man seriously injured in a traffic accident early Thursday, when he was partly thrown out of his car in a collision on the Patricia Bay Highway near Keating Cross Road, died in Royal Jubilee Hospital just after 1:30 a.m. today.

Gordon Troy, 19, of 963 Sluggert, was returning to his Central Saanich home after driving into Victoria.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ferris, 3078 Newton, who occupied the second car were in fairly good condition yesterday.

The youth was driving his family's small car because his own was in for repairs.

Police set the time of the crash at 12:10 a.m.

GORDON TROY ... critical condition

The Ferris car was travelling south towards Victoria when it pulled out to pass a truck on the hill just south of Keating Cross Road. The highway at that point is divided into three lanes, one northbound, one southbound and a passing lane for southbound cars.

Both cars were in the passing lane at the time of impact.

TOOK GIRLFRIEND HOME

Impact tore the fuel tank from the Ferris car. Steering wheel of the Troy car was bent almost to the windshield.

The young man was returning from driving his girl friend home after she had been at his house for dinner. His mother, Mrs. John T. Troy, was celebrating her birthday Wednesday.

'Useless and Cruel'

Experiments on Cats Condemned

Two Victoria women last night severely condemned UBC experiments in which wires were planted in the brains of cats as senseless, useless and cruel.

One of them called for the use of human beings in laboratory experiments because animals and humans reacted differently.

British Columbia directors of the Canadian Council for Animal Welfare, Mrs. Helen Kerswell, 646 Niagara, and Mother Cecilia Mary of the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter, are considering filing a protest.

test at the team of medical researchers at UBC, attempting to stop the experiment.

The team, headed by Dr. Hugh McLennan, associate professor of physiology, has planted fine wires deep in the brains of a number of cats and connected tiny radio receivers to them.

The receivers receive radio impulses from a separate transmitter and feed the impulses into the cats' brains.

"Depending upon the number of pulses introduced into the cat's brain, the animal can be made to halt in mid-stride, turn to right or left, or turn in a tight circle," a UBC spokesman announced.

Dr. McLennan says the importance of the phenomena is still obscure and that years of work and further experimentation will be necessary before a clear picture emerges.

"It is certainly cruel to the cats and it would appear to be quite unnecessary," Mrs. Kerswell said. "I don't think anything educational will come of it."

"We can see no way in which these experiments on animals can be applicable to the treatment of people.

"So many of these experiments are entirely useless when it comes to people."

Mother Cecilia Mary also said nothing would be gained through the experiments except suffering for the animals involved.

Whole Crops Can Be Doomed

Kill Pests, Protect Public Federal Aims

By JUDGEN HENSE

Entire crops of vegetables or fruit have been confiscated and destroyed in Victoria by federal inspectors over the past years because they contained more than the "safe" minimum of poisonous residue from pesticide spraying.

Ten inspectors—with the "right to trespass"—are being sent out by the Dominion Experimental Farm in Saanichton every month to make sure the population is only sold fruit or vegetables free of poison.

In another move aimed at keeping crops safe, experimental farm scientists have branded some of the pesticides and herbicides "too hot to handle" and will not allow them to be sold in Victoria stores or elsewhere in B.C.

But generally, the experimental farm says yes to pesticides.

In a passionate plea for the use of poison sprays to save crops from destruction by pests, superintendent Harry Andison of the Saanichton Experimental Farm fires away with these facts:

● We (the federal department of agriculture) don't know nearly enough about insecticides but we make every effort to develop safer sprays;

● We are getting a little too haphazard with these deadly poisons;

● Canadian government inspectors visit Victoria stores every month to check for correct labelling of pesticide containers;

● If the label doesn't meet with the Pest Control Products Act (1930) regulations, the entire shipment is confiscated;

● There is an antidote

available and listed on the container of every insecticide;

● All insecticides must be registered every year—that means all licences automatically expire Dec. 31 of every year.

For the defenders of the balance of nature, Mr. Andison has one question: "How do you know whether nature will take care of itself?"

"Most pests don't have a reliable predator," he says. But he gives credit to Rachel Carson's book Silent Spring—in which she warns of the dangers of pesticides—by saying:

"There is and has been a tendency to use pesticides

when not necessary. Some regard spraying as cheap insurance."

All pesticides on the market in B.C. are safe to use as long as all restrictions and regulations for their use are followed correctly, Mr. Andison says.

The 15 most poisonous pesticides are "very rarely recommended or used in B.C."

"This year, we have 10 inspectors going around B.C. stores and farms taking fruit or vegetable samples which are then analyzed by us for poisonous residue," he says.

"If they contain more than the minimum allowed,

the entire shipment or crop is confiscated."

This has happened several times in the past years, he said.

As for the sale of poisonous sprays, Mr. Andison says in order to sell a bottle of pesticide it has to be registered under the Pesticide Control Products Act and must bear a "PCP" number.

Also, he adds, every container must—and does—list the antidote.

He and the girls on the switchboard of the experimental farm have the Pesticide Handbook 1962 on hand which lists 9,444 products—insecticides, fungicides, herbicides, rodenticides, soil conditioners and "equipment" such as spray bombs.

They also have on hand the 1962 edition of Pesticides Chemical Official Compendium which lists an antidote for every pesticide.

"There is not one pesticide product sold in Victoria of which I do not know the chemical ingredients or the antidote," Mr. Andison says.

Victorians Planting, Not Eating, 'Dream' Seeds

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Sale of morning glory seeds in Victoria have remained stable despite a 5,000 per cent increase in sale in the United States where thrill-seekers eat them to produce hallucinations.

With no difficulty at all, a Colonist reporter bought a packet of some 300 seeds in a downtown store for 15 cents yesterday afternoon.

Reports from the U.S. say the seeds contain a drug closely resembling LSD-25, a rare drug being used experimentally in the United States.

LSD-25 produces hallucinatory dreams, sensations of vivid color, heightened emotions and increases extra-sensory perception.

Dr. Charles Savage, 44-year-old medical director of the International Foundation for Advanced Study at Menlo Park, Calif., reported recently he had induced hallucinations in test subjects with doses ranging from 50 to 500 seeds.

The seed-induced trances lasted from five to eight hours each.

Most stores selling seeds which were checked in Victoria yesterday appeared unaware of the properties held by the small, bitter brown seeds.

But a spokesman for Woodward's Florists, who identified herself only as "Mrs. Pat," was obviously aware of what the seeds can do.

She listed several other plants which have been used in the past by drug addicts, including opium poppies and foxgloves.

A major U.S. seed wholesaler recently found his sales were running 50 times more than normal.

Provincial botanist Dr. Adam Szezwinski said last night three varieties of Morning Glory grow wild in British Columbia and two of them rate as noxious weeds.

"Maybe those who want hallucinations will help rid Victoria of these weeds," he suggested jokingly.

Seed pods of Morning Glory growing in B.C. will be ripe in about a month's time.

Although no deaths are known to have been caused by eating of the seeds, U.S. drug officials are investigating the seeds and their effects on people.

U.S. Airline Orders 15 British-Made Jets

NEW YORK (AP)—American Airlines placed a $46,000,000 order for 15 British-made short range jet airplanes.

Fire Fear Hangs Over Tiny Town

PLACENTIA, Nfld. (CP)—Fear hangs over the small town of Freshwater, just across the harbor from this Avalon peninsula community.

Missing Grain Solved

WASHINGTON (AP) — The state department said Thursday no United States official was to blame for the mysterious disappearance of 24,000,000 bushels of feed grain sent to Austria in a barter deal.

"Investigation clearly shows that no American official was in any way involved in the version of these grains," Robert McCloskey, a state department spokesman said.

State department officials made their comment Friday in the wake of a report to Congress by Senator John J. Williams (Rep.-Del.) about the missing 24,000,000 bushels of grain.

Officials said this is an old story and the state and agricultural departments have been investigating the situation since last December.

J. K. Mansfield, the state department's inspector-general of foreign assistance, made two trips to Europe in the course of this investigation, which led to the arrest of principal officers of six Austrian grain importing firms.

Officials here are satisfied that the grain which did not reach Austria was sold in Western Europe not behind the Iron Curtain.

Since July 9 eight fires have raged through buildings in Freshwater and neighboring Jerseyside. All are believed to have been deliberately set.

The town has been placed on the alert. Residents and RCMP constables are patrolling various sections.

An official of the Freshwater town council said the people "are really living in fear. The whole town is scared."

OIL SATURATED

He said the burned buildings "were saturated with oil. They're trying to put fear into the widows and older people . . . everyone is scared."

One responsible official of the community who did not want to be named said he and his wife have received 21 threats since the fires started.

The largest fire destroyed a 100-foot shed used by the town council to store equipment.

HOUSE DESTROYED

A two-storey vacant house was destroyed July 9. A bungalow was partially destroyed and a barn levelled July 12.

The next day another barn burned. July 14 an attempt was made to finish off the bungalow damaged July 12 the same night an empty storage shed was destroyed.

The council official said no one has yet been apprehended, and more than one person is believed responsible.

Anne Hears Sordid Debate, Plans Private Schooling

LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Anne visited the House of Commons for the first time Thursday shortly after it was announced she will be sent away to private school in southeast England this autumn.

The 13-year-old princess, wearing a ribbon in her hair, was treated to a stormy session of Parliament with references to corruption and prostitution.

She heard an exchange over the late Peter Rasmussen, real estate tycoon who kept playgirl Mandy Rice-Davies.

It was announced meanwhile that the young princess will attend exclusive Benenden School for girls, 30 miles from here, in Kent.

Benenden's fees, which increased by £45 Thursday, total £325 a year.

Anne will be joined at school by two Ethiopian princesses and another princess from Jordan.

Previously, Anne's education was with a governess in Buckingham Palace. She began lessons when she was five.

For the last six years, she has had only two "classmates," Caroline Hamilton and Susan Babington Smith.

The uproar in Parliament blew up while Housing Minister Sir Keith Joseph was attempting to field a barrage of questions about his department's activities.

From her perch high in the gallery, Anne heard one opposition Labor party member claim the proper redevelopment of British slums was being hindered by speculation in property and prostitution.

The clamor reached a peak when the parliamentary secretary to the housing minister, F. V. Corfield, said he knew of no evidence to show that land reclamation, normally carried out by the government, was being frustrated.

Through it all, Anne had the procedures of Parliament explained by the sergeant-at-arms, Rear-Admiral A. H. C. Gordon-Lennox, wearing his traditional court costume of black silk stockings and silver-buckled shoes.

Princess Anne smiles as she leaves House of Commons.

U.S. Tax Move No Bite On B.C. Projects

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

B.C.'s two huge hydro power projects are safe from the jaws of President Kennedy's proposed new tax bite on foreign investment, Premier Bennett told the Colonist Thursday.

He said some sort of move by the U.S. to curb the outflow of American dollars has appeared to him to be inevitable for some time and B.C. has taken steps to meet it.

One of the steps was in amassing the $40,000,000 cumulative surplus which was disclosed yesterday.

The tax which Kennedy has proposed to congress will mean

Red Agent 'Still In Russia'

MOSCOW (AP)—Izvestia said Thursday the man named as the Russian intelligence officer who was reported to have defected in the West, Anatoly Dolynin, is actually in Russia.

The Soviet government newspaper backed its claim by publishing a picture of a blond, bespectacled young man which it said was taken in its offices Thursday.

It said Dolynin worked in the Soviet embassy in London in 1961, as Western reports said.

"Of course, he never defected and never asked anyone for asylum," the newspaper said.

Contributory Plan Old Age Pension Boost To $75 Slated Next Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The old age pension will be boosted $10 to $75 monthly at age 70 early next year under the proposed Canada Pension Plan, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Thursday.

By October next year, it is hoped to start collecting employer - employee contributions up to a maximum $3.32 monthly from each - or a maximum $40 annually - to finance the scheme.

The proposals outlined Thursday, including the $10 increase and subsequent additions, will be financed by contributions. The basic $63-a-month old age pension will continue to be financed by the old age security tax - amounting to three per cent of income or a maximum of $90 a year.

Under the new contributory plan January, 1966, has been set as the target to begin paying the first additional amounts over and above the flat $75 monthly pension. These additional payments would start at a maximum $10 a month per individual in 1966 and rise to a maximum $100 at the end of the 10-year program to get the scheme launched.

MAXIMUM OF $175

Thus, under maximum conditions depending on earnings, an individual by 1975 could be getting a federal pension of $175 monthly compared with the existing payment of $65.

In addition, in 1966 individuals can elect to take their pensions at age 65 or any year thereafter up to age 70 - but such pensions would be smaller than those taken at age 70.

HARD WORK AHEAD

The whole timetable is contingent on Parliament passing the necessary legislation, plus some hard work for nearly a year in lining up the machinery, which will include identification numbers for each individual and a special computer.

Coverage will be compulsory for most employees. Possible exceptions will be persons such as farm help - where it will be difficult to administer the collection of contributions by employers.

TWO PER CENT

Contributions will be based initially at not more than two per cent of earnings up to a total of $4,000 annually. Persons earning more than $4,000 will contribute at the $4,000 rate.

Contributors will benefit proportionately to the amount of their investment in the fund, which will be self-supporting in its entirety, Miss LaMarsh said.

On White House Lawn Students Mob Kennedy Grab Hankie, Tie Clasp

$11,500,000

Estate of $11,500,000 was left by Swedish financier Dr. Axel Wenner-Gren, half of it to the Wenner-Gren foundation for the study of Sweden, it was learned Thursday. His huge industrial plant for central B.C. were finally dropped after his death.

WASHINGTON (UPI) — when Kennedy - after making brief remarks - walked up to the students massed in a roped-off area.

The students swarmed around him and plowed into his prized boxwood hedges.

But secret service agents and White House policemen who ringed the president to protect him did not fare so well.

One officer, who has had heart trouble, was overcome in the 90-degree heat; another had all of his tie except the knot torn from his neck, and a secret service agent lost a shoe.

A boy snatched Kennedy's tie clasp, and a girl got his handkerchief. "That's two from our bus that got something," one girl proudly exclaimed. Another girl, watching officers trying to protect the president, observed: "My, but these policemen are so tactless."

The melee took place at the annual White House reception for foreign students in the U.S. under American field service exchange scholarships.

Viet Nam Meets Buddhist Demands

SAIGON (Reuters-AP)—South Viet Nam's Roman Catholic President, Ngo Dinh Diem, held out an olive branch to the country's Buddhists Thursday night as Buddhist monks and nuns ended a 48-hour hunger strike against alleged religious discrimination.

The monks and nuns remained inside the Xa Loi Pagoda, which has been blockaded by government police since Tuesday.

Diem in a broadcast said he had instructed a special inter-ministerial committee to cooperate closely with Buddhist leaders to settle complaints about implementation of an agreement signed between the Buddhists and the government June 16.

He also acceded to Buddhist demands that all sects be given equal rights to fly religious flags.

The Buddhists claim that the government is being too tardy in putting into effect the provisions of a communique, which was aimed at easing Buddhist animosity with Christianity in this predominantly Buddhist nation.

U.S. Senate Backs Marked Lumber

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate voted Thursday, in the face of Kennedy administration opposition, to require that Canadian lumber imported into the United States be marked to show its origin.

The requirement was embodied in an amendment sponsored by Senator Warren G. Magnuson (Dem. Wash.) to a House of Representatives bill requiring that when imported articles are repackaged in this country, the new packages must be marked to show the country of origin.

Magnuson's amendment was adopted on a standing vote. Senators from the Pacific Northwest long have complained about Canadian lumber imports and have demanded action to stop them.

The Washington Senator told his colleagues Thursday that "Canada has taken 50 per cent of our (lumber) market."

State and commerce department officials told the finance committee during hearings on the legislation that such an amendment would violate a long-standing trade agreement between the United States and Canada.

The state department submitted to the committee an aide memoire from the Canadian embassy declaring that "Canadian authorities would consider such marketing requirements as having serious restrictive implications."

The bill now goes back to the House for consideration of the lumber amendment.

REV. DR. PETER KELLY

NANAIMO—Rev. Dr. Peter Kelly, veteran missionary of the north, and Haida Indian chief, is in Nanaimo Regional General Hospital following his second heart attack within a month.

Dr. Kelly Thursday night was in an oxygen tent. His doctor describes his condition as "pretty fair."

The 78-year-old United Church missionary, who has worked for the church along the northwest coast for 33 years, had just been released from Prince Rupert Hospital. He had been on a trouble-shooting mission at Fort Simpson last month to settle a dispute between Indians and loggers.

On his return to Prince Rupert he was sent to hospital. Mrs. Kelly said last night that on his return to Nanaimo he suffered a second attack and was taken to hospital here early Tuesday morning.

Colt League Selects All-Star Team

CHEMAINUS — The Mid-Island Baseball Colt League has now completed its regular scheduled season, with the Chemainus team ending as the victors.

An All-Star team has now been picked from the two Nanaimo teams, the Ladysmith team and the Chemainus team. The boys are hard at work preparing to meet the Victoria All-Stars for the V.I. Championship.

A two-out-of-three series will be played, the first game Wednesday, July 24, starting at 6:30 and the second on July 27, with a deciding game the same evening if necessary.

The Mid-Island players are: from Nanaimo, R. Finley, R. Beck, D. Peppers, P. Long, F. English; from Ladysmith, B. McMahon, W. Cairns, L. Jameson, N. Shulson, R. Gilson, M. Davidson; from Chemainus, J. Reggs, B. Nichols, D. Rochon, W. Check, J. Glaswick, R. Rochon.

H. Leighton of Nanaimo is coach and P. Rochon, Chemainus, team manager.

COURTENAY — A family court committee is being set up here under the Family and Children's Courts Act.

Purpose of the committee is to assist the courts, probation officer and welfare officers.

It has been suggested that the committee might investigate a number of subjects including a detention home for the Upper Island; a remand home where juveniles, who should not be remanded in the custody of police or parents, could be held; a group living home for children, not delinquents, who must be accommodated for varying periods and a variety of reasons.

This home could also be used for runaways.

DUNCAN — One of the foremost western horsemen experts here, Bob Batty, Sr., will judge the Western and Cutting Horse Contest at a horse show July 20 and 21, at Vancouver. Second judge in that class will be Mrs. Hilda McDonnell, Douglas Lake, and Max Manchester from Portland, Ore., will judge the English riding events.

Mr. Batty said the show is held in aid of the Canadian Mental Health Association. Participation is expected from Vancouver Island, the B.C. mainland and the United States.

NANAIMO — Should Grade 10 students be permitted to drive cars to school? This question is being considered by trustees of School District 68. The school board is asking other school boards for their policies on the question of whether cars and low marks go hand in hand.

North Vancouver school district does not permit Grade 10 students to drive to school and trustees here indicate they may bring in a similar rule.

COURTENAY — Prizes totaling $150 are being offered for entries in opening parade for the Fall Fair, Aug. 29.

In conjunction with the fair, the Vancouver Island Ayrshire Club is holding its annual show.

Around the Island

CAMPBELL RIVER — Eight girls of this community will compete for the title "Miss Campbell River" this Sunday at the Van Isle theatre. Names of the judges, all from out of town, have not been disclosed.

Competitors and their sponsors are: Connie Christiansen, Lions Club; Candy Kondek, Kinsmen; Judy Price, B.C. Airlines; Frances McHugh, Elk Falls Mill; Gail Ross, Royal Canadian Legion; Barbara Thornton, Island Airlines; Roberta Weber, Fraternal Order of Eagles, and Mary Wilson, Elks.

DUNCAN — Two basic requirements for the prospective Cowichan Exhibition queen and her two princesses to rule at the Fall Fair, are that they should be single and between 18 and 21.

Final choice will be made by a panel of judges yet to be chosen, consisting of three men and two women, at the auditorium of the Cowichan Senior

Centenarian

Secondary School, Aug. 31. The Duncan Junior Chamber of Commerce is responsible for the contest, and in case more than 10 entries are received, a preliminary contest will be held.

TOFINO — A west coast prospector for many years, and resident of this district for 35 years, Herbert F. Martin, 78, died Saturday at Shaughnessy Military Hospital, Vancouver.

Until 10 years ago he had been an active member of the Royal Canadian Legion and in Manoh Lodge, AF & AM.

Mr. Martin was a veteran of the First World War and funeral services in Vancouver will be conducted by the Legion.

NANAIMO — Supervision of all school training by local school districts is suggested in two resolutions to be submitted by School District 68 to the B.C. School Trustees Association convention in October.

The resolutions call for regular inspection of kindergartens to ensure that they conform to the requirements of the school board and supervision of private schools.

The resolutions will also ask for legislation to make possible these inspections.

NANAIMO — No reply has yet been received by the Kiwanis Club since the club asked the provincial department of recreation and conservation to suggest a suitable summer camp for handicapped children here.

The request was sent out more than two months ago but Kiwanis president Archie Reid reports the club is still waiting for a reply.

participants wrote pre-course assignment essays which were discussed during the course. Instructors were Mrs. Marjorie Smith and Bert Curtis of UBC extension and regional staff members and Indian affairs branch lecturers from Ottawa.

DUNCAN — Police court: Clifford Sam, Seaside, consuming liquor in public place, $50; David Morgan, Westholme, failing to yield right of way to pedestrian in crosswalk, $10; Ellen Laverne Thompson, Victoria, speeding, $15.

New Chief Appointed

chief's "record, ability and personality," the mayor added. "The commission has every confidence that he can handle the big job of rebuilding and reorganization that lies ahead," Mayor Wilson said.

EFFICIENT FORCE

He added: "The commission's aim is to make Victoria police department the most efficient force in B.C."

"There is much good material in the present force and with the right kind of leadership, training and discipline it can be welded into an effective unit."

One of the first jobs facing the new chief will be studying the accommodation needs of the police headquarters building on Flanagan and recommending desired changes to the police commission.

"The basic structure is sound," the mayor said. "We're confident that it can be converted into a modern and efficient police building."

Staff-Sgt. Gregory will travel to several cities in western Canada during his vacation in the next few weeks to study the best available modern police accommodation.

He is married, with a teenage son and daughter. He is also a member of Cranbrook Lodge, AF & AM, Glens Temple, director of Prince Rupert Rotary Club and chairman of the sponsoring committee of 539 Squadron, Royal Canadian Air Cadets.

BORN IN ENGLAND

Born Dec. 6, 1919, at Wellington, England, he came to Vernon with his family at the age of five. He completed Grade 12 in Vernon schools and joined the B.C. provincial police June 10, 1939.

He has served in many B.C. centres, including Victoria, for 18 months immediately after the war, and in recent years served with RCMP detachments in Kamloops and Kitimat before being posted to Prince Rupert sub-division.

Staff-Sgt. Gregory attended B.C. provincial police training school, RCMP indoctrination class in 1952, preventive service course in 1953, and Canadian Police College, Regina, 1958.

Clubs Planning Joint Picnic

Members of the Chinook Club and Victoria Saanich Inlet Anglers Association will hold a combined picnic Sunday. The picnic, which may become an annual affair, will start at 12 noon at Shore Acres Marina at Mill Bay. Members of both clubs are welcome for a full afternoon of games, swimming, races and club competitions.

Big Parks Program Scheduled Today

Sandbox art and a fancy dress parade will keep almost 2,500 Greater Victoria children busy today in nine city parks and Oak Bay's Carnarvon Park.

The city parks will hold sandbox contests as part of the city's summer park recreation program with prizes to be awarded to the two parks which give the best displays.

The judging will begin at 1:30 p.m. with members of the city's parks department and T. Eaton Co. trying to decide which parks have the best shows.

Projects planned include fountains, buildings, castles, relief maps of Vancouver Island and a display showing architecture through the ages.

In Oak Bay supervisor Linda Bishop will hold a fancy dress parade with a circus theme for some 300 children who take part in the summer program.

B.C. Power Jobs 'Safe'

higher interest rates for Canadian borrowing in the U.S.

But, said the premier, B.C. will not, strictly speaking, be doing any borrowing in the U.S. for power projects.

The Peace project, already underway, will continue to be financed in B.C.

To finance the $500,000,000 Columbia River development B.C. expects to obtain from U.S. sources a series of advances on the price to be paid for the province's downstream power entitlement.

NOT BORROWINGS

"As advances they would not be borrowings and hence would escape the new Kennedy restrictions," said the premier.

How seriously would the Kennedy tax hit Canada?

"Not as badly as the federal financial crisis last year," the premier replied.

But he urged immediate counter-measures by Ottawa to mitigate the effect.

He called for full repeal of the new federal tax on construction materials, easing of credit and a lower prime interest rate.

The U.S. move came as no surprise, he told reporters.

BASIC RULES

The U.S. had suffered repeated deficits "and it doesn't matter how big you are, you have to follow the same basic rules."

"You can't go on picking up the dinner check all the time," B.C. will be spared much of the impact because of what the premier referred to as a "$35,000,000 shock absorber" in the form of bank deposits, as well as other liquid assets.

"Call me an old-fashioned premier if you like," he said, "but it's nice to have something put aside for a rainy day."

He predicted that if the Kennedy measure is adopted, it will only last six months.

The Peace project, he said, would continue to be financed by hydro earnings, the cumulative surplus and government-administered pension funds.

PENSION MONEY

A total of about $250,000,000 in pension fund money is administered by the government and much of it is available for reinvestment at going interest rates.

He thought the advances with which he plans to finance the Columbia development might come from the Bonneville Power Administration or from companies which plan to purchase the power.

Trade Minister Bonner said the proposed U.S. tax will hinder expansion programs for some Canadian companies planning to borrow in the U.S.

CROSS PARALLEL He termed the tax proposal proof that "anti-American statements produced for Canadian consumption do cross the 49th parallel and produce results elsewhere."

Calgary Man Found Guilty

SEATTLE (AP)—A jury of eight men and four women found Roy Allan Willis, of Calgary, also known as Lance Miller, guilty of second degree murder Thursday night.

He faces a maximum penalty of life imprisonment. Willis, artist and travelling salesman, was charged in the shooting of Mrs. Helen Marie Flinn, 27, in her apartment here last Oct. 27. He contended it was an accident.

Your Good Health

Non-Irritating Diet Cure for Gastritis

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: What about gastritis? My husband has it. He feels as if his heart is "tormented" — he gets short of breath when he tries to work and yet the doctor says his heart is good. Is diet the cure?—M.N.

Well, yes, I think we can say diet is the cure, but let me explain why.

Gastritis is an efficient way of saying that the patient is suffering from an irritation or inflammation of the mucosa or inner lining of the stomach.

Swallowing a corrosive acid or alkali produces gastritis of a critical sort. Spoiled food can cause it, too.

There can be gastritis from too-highly spiced food, from food allergies, from various drugs including some antibiotics.

FROM ALCOHOL

Gastritis from alcohol is a common condition.

Symptoms are variable: a feeling of fullness in the stomach, heartburn or lesser pain, headache, dizziness, vomiting, fever, exhaustion, coated tongue.

The gastritis alone shouldn't make him huff and puff, since his heart is good. What about his lungs and respiratory system, however? Did the breathlessness exist before the gastritis started? Is the patient, by any chance, just plain out of condition from lack of exercise? Is he overweight? Does he overeat? How about alcohol?

Irritation of the stomach, like anywhere else, must be treated first of all by removing its cause. If it is food, medications or alcohol, the irritant must be stopped.

In that sense, diet is the cure. That doesn't mean a rigid or fancy diet. It means a non-irritating but reasonable one. That is, in such cases, almost invariably an effective treatment and very little if any medicine is needed.

Dear Sir: What vitamins would you recommend to extend a man's sexual life at age 60?—J.M.N.

None. Vitamins have nothing to do with the problem, assuming you get enough for reasonable general health. Why not accept the fact that 60 is 60?

Dear Dr. Molner: Is chronic diarrhoea one of the old-age plagues?—M.W.

Not necessarily. Often a lack of acid in the stomach causes it. Amebic dysentery is a possibility. So is irritation from diverticulosis. Most cases can be corrected once the right diagnosis has been made. See your doctor, and your chances of ending this trouble are good.

Veterans Honored

Long-time members of Victoria's Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans were honored Thursday when five First World War veterans were given life memberships and a sixth was awarded a 25-year pin.

President D. M. Fye presented the pin to J. B. Forrester and the life memberships to Joseph Dobbie, A. S. Blaney, John Dugdale, H. W. Panthorpe and C. W. Reid.

Bibles Banned From Schools

TALLAHASSEE, Fla. (AP)—The Florida State Supreme Court has outlawed distribution of Gideon Bibles in public schools, saying it was the only decision possible under recent U.S. Supreme Court rulings on church and state separation. The action came in an appeal by a group of parents seeking to ban distribution of Bibles in Orange County.

Buffalo-Killing Disease Back

EDMONTON (CP)—Anthrax has reappeared among a herd of buffalo roaming north of Wood Buffalo Park, killing 12 of the animals, a wildlife department biologist at the park said Wednesday.

Nick Novakowski said confirmation of the cause of the deaths came from the department's laboratory at Hull. He said more deaths are expected.

Hope Bay Ferry Runs Today

A B.C. government ferry which ran aground and suffered damage at Hope Bay on North Pender Island last week is scheduled to resume service today.

The vessel was the Pender Queen which serves the Gulf Islands from Swartz Bay.

It was the Pender Queen which a short time earlier crushed a small boat at one of the islands during docking manoeuvres.

STEM AND KEEL

The grounding incident resulted in damage to the vessel's stem and keel.

The ferry was brought to Victoria for repairs on Monday.

During its time out of service it was replaced by the slower Cy Peck.

Trainees Urged To Insure

NANAIMO—Occupational students taking on-the-job training are urged by School District 63 to arrange for personal insurance coverage while the overall problem of coverage is being investigated by the B.C. Association of School Trustees.

Because occupational training presents hazards to the students the Workmen's Compensation Board has informed the school board that the students are not covered.

A study is now being carried out by B.C. trustees in conjunction with a group of insurance companies.

Phone Hogs Foiled By Trustees

NANAIMO—Trustees of School District 63 may have private lines installed for their telephones at the expense of the taxpayers.

Trustees on multi-party lines have complained that telephone hogs often prevent them from being reached by school authorities when needed.

The plan to have all trustees on single-party lines is now under study and the difference in cost would be borne by the school board. However, if the plan proves too costly the scheme will be dropped.

'Useless and Cruel'

Experiments on Cats Condemned

Two Victoria women last night severely condemned UBC experiments in which wires were planted in the brains of cats as senseless, useless and cruel.

One of them called for the use of human beings in laboratory experiments because animals and humans reacted differently.

British Columbia directors of the Canadian Council for Animal Welfare, Mrs. Helen Kerwell, 646 Niagara, and Mother Cecilia Mary of the Good Shepherd Animal Shelter, are considering filing a protest at the team of medical researchers at UBC, attempting to stop the experiment.

Hams to Meet Radio Official

Local hams and all who are interested will have the opportunity of meeting with Alex Reid, vice-president of the American Radio Relay League, when the Victoria Short Wave Club meets at the clubhouse, 2300 Foul Bay Road, at 8 p.m. today.

Hugh McLennan, associate professor of physiology, has planted fine wires deep in the brains of a number of cats and connected tiny radio receivers to them.

The receivers receive radio impulses from a separate transmitter and feed the impulses into the cats' brains.

"Depending upon the number of pulses introduced into the cat's brain, the animal can be made to halt in mid-stride, turn to right or left, or turn in a tight circle..." a UBC spokesman announced.

STILL OBSCURE

Dr. McLennan says the importance of the phenomena is still obscure and that years of work and further experimentation will be necessary before a clear picture emerges.

"It is certainly cruel to the cats and it would appear to be quite unnecessary," Mrs. Kerwell said. "I don't think anything educational will come of it."

"We can see no way in which these experiments on animals can be applicable to the treatment of people."

"So many of these experiments are entirely useless when it comes to people."

Mother Cecilia Mary also said nothing would be gained through the experiments except suffering for the animals involved.

"Isn't it a terrible thing?" she asked. "It should definitely be stopped. It is a very cruel thing to do."

Hawkins Brings Back Old Following Birds

Another step in the rehabilitation of the birds whom one follows to Victoria is expected soon.

William Hawkins, commissioner of the Victoria Visitors Bureau, said last night the bureau is expecting a newly-printed Victoria folder to be delivered within the next two weeks.

Prominently displayed on it will be the time-honored slogan, "Follow the Birds to Victoria."

Before the recent split of the old Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau into the Victoria Visitors Bureau and the Vancouver Island Publicity Bureau, Mr. Hawkins soft-pedalled the "Follow the Birds" slogan in favor of one plugging Vancouver Island as "Canada's Treasure Island."

He said he did this so up Island municipalities would not feel left out.

The 13 most poisonous pesticides are "very rarely recommended or used in B.C."

"This year, we have 10 inspectors going around B.C. stores, and farms taking fruit or vegetable samples which are then analyzed by us for poisonous residue," he says.

Driver Faces Trial

Death Followed Cars In 'Bit' of a Drag Race

Events in a drag race which ended in the death of 19-year-old Neil Kirby, 110 Medina, June 14, were unfolded at a preliminary hearing in Saanich magistrate's court yesterday.

Fugitive Still At Large

Still at large after more than a day's freedom is Clarence Anderson, 45, fugitive from William Head minimum security prison.

RCMP at Victoria said last night they have checked out several calls from people who thought they saw Anderson, but all have proved false alarms.

Anderson, who was serving four years for breaking and entering in Vancouver, is described as five feet, four inches in height, 152 pounds, fair complexion, brown hair, slight build.

He was last seen wearing prison garb, and is not considered dangerous.

Larry Neil, 242 Glenairlie, who is charged with criminal negligence and failing to remain at the scene of an accident was committed for trial at the conclusion of the hearing. He was released on $1,000 bail.

ON ROSE STREET

Court was told the idea for the race between two cars first came up while the group of boys were parked at the White Spot Restaurant and the cars set out for Rose Street.

Waving two hands at about waist level, Allyn de Wolfe, 1018 Balmoral, who was a passenger in the Neil car, demonstrated to the court how a drag race was started. He waved as though pointing at one imaginary car with each hand.

CARS TAKE OFF

"What happens when you drop your hands?" asked Saanich prosecutor Kenneth Murphy.

"The cars take off," replied de Wolfe.

Vernon Banfield, 847 Carrie, told the court there was supposed to be a "bit of a race. We were supposed to follow the other cars," he said.

BEHIND CENTRE

He said he parked about halfway along the block and as the cars came by the Chevrolet driven by Neil was in the lead by 100 yards.

As the Neil car approached Toimie Avenue there were two cars proceeding west on Toimie, Banfield said. The first car went through the intersection then he (Banfield) saw headlights "swing round like a searchlight."

Seconds later he heard a crash, he told the court.

The Neil car, police evidence disclosed earlier, collided at Toimie with a vehicle driven on that street by Mrs. Ruth Kirkpatrick, 21, 615 Kent.

Mrs. Kirkpatrick and two passengers in the Neil car besides Kirby, suffered injuries in the crash.

Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ferris, 2078 Newton, who occupied the second car were in fairly good condition yesterday.

NDP Chief Here Soon

T. C. Douglas, national leader of the New Democratic Party, hopes to attend a picnic New Democrats plan at Sea Bluff Farm on Whitty Beach Road in Metachee at 2 p.m. July 20.

The picnic will include hay rides, pony rides, a pet show and home cooking, with contributions welcome. Refreshments will be supplied but people may bring their own.

At Gardens

Baby Seal Needs Naming

A baby hair seal, which adopted four youngsters camping on Sooke beach, became the newest tenant in the Undersea Gardens at Oak Bay yesterday.

The youngsters, Dennis, Chris and Gwen Perry of 2280 Florence, and Ron Canavan were camped on the beach Wednesday when the seal climbed into their boat.

Thursday when they went fishing it followed them.

When the youngsters returned, followed by the baby seal, they phoned Jim Lund, curator of the Undersea Gardens.

At the Undersea Gardens, the seal took to the divers as if they were long lost friends.

Starting today a Name The Seal Contest will be held and Colonial readers should send their entries to the contest to Undersea Gardens, 1337 Beach Drive.

Winners of the contest will receive a season pass to the gardens. Contest will close Sunday, July 21, at 5 p.m.

Whole Crops Can Be Doomed

Kill Pests, Protect Public Federal Aims

By JURGEN RESSE

Entire crops of vegetables or fruit have been confiscated and destroyed in Victoria by federal inspectors over the past years because they contained more than the "safe" minimum of poisonous residue from pesticide spraying.

Ten inspectors—with the "right to trespass"—are being sent out by the Dominion Experimental Farm in Saanichton every month to make sure the population is only sold fruit or vegetables free of poison.

In another move aimed at keeping crops safe, experimental farm scientists have branded some of the pesticides and herbicides "too hot to handle" and will not allow them to be sold in Victoria stores or elsewhere in B.C.

But generally, the experimental farm says yes to pesticides.

In a passionate plea for the use of poison sprays to save crops from destruction by pests, superintendent Harry Anderson of the Saanichton Experimental Farm lives away with these facts:

● We (the federal department of agriculture) don't know nearly enough about insecticides but we make every effort to develop safer sprays.

● We are getting a little too haphazard with these deadly poisons.

● Canadian government inspectors visit Victoria stores every month to check for correct labelling of pesticide containers.

● If the label doesn't meet with the Pest Control Products Act (1920) regulations, the entire shipment is confiscated.

● There is an antidote

available and listed on the container of every insecticide.

● All insecticides must be registered every year—that means all licences automatically expire Dec. 31 of every year.

For the defenders of the balance of nature, Mr. Anderson has one question: "How do you know whether nature will take care of itself?"

"Most pests don't have a reliable predator," he says. But he gives credit to Rachel Carson's book Silent Spring—in which she warns of the dangers of pesticides—by saying:

"There is and has been a tendency to use pesticides

when not necessary. Some regard spraying as cheap insurance."

All pesticides on the market in B.C. are safe to use as long as all restrictions and regulations for their use are followed correctly, Mr. Anderson says.

The 13 most poisonous pesticides are "very rarely recommended or used in B.C."

"This year, we have 10 inspectors going around B.C. stores, and farms taking fruit or vegetable samples which are then analyzed by us for poisonous residue," he says.

Victorians Planting, Not Eating, 'Dream' Seeds

By TED SHACKLEFORD

Sale of morning glory seeds in Victoria have remained stable despite a 5,000 per cent increase in sale in the United States where thrill-seekers eat them to produce hallucinations.

With no difficulty at all, a Colonist reporter bought a packet of some 300 seeds in a downtown store for 15 cents yesterday afternoon.

Reports from the U.S. say the seeds contain a drug closely resembling LSD-25, a rare drug being used experimentally in the United States.

LSD-25 produces hallucinatory dreams, sensations of vivid color, heightened emotions and increases extra-sensory perception.

Dr. Charles Savage, 44-year-old medical director of the International Foundation for Advanced Study at Menlo Park, Calif., reported recently he had induced hallucinations in test subjects with doses ranging from 50 to 500 seeds.

The seed-induced trances lasted from five to eight hours each.

Most stores selling seeds which were checked in Victoria yesterday appeared unaware of the properties held by the small, bitter, brown seeds.

But a spokesman for Woodward's Florists, who identified herself only as "Mrs. Pat," was obviously aware of what the seeds can do.

She listed several other plants which have been used in the past by drug addicts, including opium poppies and foxgloves.

A major U.S. seed wholesaler recently found his sales were running 50 times more than normal.

Provincial botanist Dr. Adam Szczawinski said last night three varieties of Morning Glory grow wild in British Columbia and two of them rate as noxious weeds.

"Maybe those who want hallucinations will help rid Victoria of these weeds," he suggested jokingly.

Seed pods of Morning Glory growing in B.C. will be ripe in about a month's time.

Although no deaths are known to have been caused by eating of the seeds, U.S. drug officials are investigating the seeds and their effects on people.

Also, he adds, every container must—and does—list the antidote.

He and the girls on the switchboard of the experimental farm have the Pesticide Handbook 1962 on hand which lists 9,444 products—insecticides, fungicides, herbicides, rodenticides, soil conditioners and "equipment" such as spray bombs.

They also have on hand the 1962 edition of Pesticides Chemical Official Compendium which lists an antidote for every pesticide.

"There is not one pesticide product sold in Victoria of which I do not know the chemical ingredients or the antidote," Mr. Anderson says.

Insecticides Do Good, Too

the entire shipment or crop is confiscated."

This has happened several times in the past years, he said.

As for the sale of poisonous sprays, Mr. Anderson says in order to sell a bottle of pesticide it has to be registered under the Pesticide Control Products Act and must bear a "PCP" number.

Also, he adds, every container must—and does—list the antidote.

Anne Hears Sordid Debate, Plans Private Schooling

LONDON (Reuters)—Princess Anne visited the House of Commons for the first time Thursday shortly after it was announced she will be sent away to private school in southeast England this autumn.

The 13-year-old princess, wearing a ribbon in her hair, was treated to a stormy session of Parliament with references to corruption and prostitution.

She heard an exchange over the late Peter Rachman, real estate tycoon who kept playgirl Mandy Rice-Davies.

It was announced meanwhile that the young princess will attend exclusive Benenden School for girls, 50 miles from here, in Kent. Benenden's fees, which increased by £45 Thursday, total £325 a year.

Anne will be joined at school by two Ethiopian princesses and another princess from Jordan.

Previously, Anne's education was with a governess in Buckingham Palace. She began lessons there when she was five.

For the last six years, she has had only two "classmates," Caroline Hamilton and Susan Babington Smith.

The uproar in Parliament blew up while Housing Minister Sir Keith Joseph was attempting to field a barrage of questions about his department's activities.

From her perch high in the gallery, Anne heard one opposition Labor party member claim the proper redevelopment of British slums was being hindered by speculation in property and prostitution.

The clamor reached a peak when the parliamentary secretary to the housing minister, F. V. Corfield, said he knew of no evidence to show that land reclamation, normally carried out by the government, was being frustrated.

Through it all, Anne had the procedures of Parliament explained by the sergeant-at-arms, Rear-Admiral A. H. C. Gordon Lennox, wearing his traditional court costume of black silk stockings and silver-buckled shoes.

Princess Anne smiles as she leaves House of Commons.

Two-Year Term

NEW CHIEF APPOINTED

By IAN STREET

RCMP Staff-Sgt. John Frederick Gregory, 43, has been appointed by Victoria police commission to a two-year term as chief constable of the city force.

Commission chairman Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday there is "a distinct possibility" that he will fill the job permanently after guiding the department through the initial two-year period of rebuilding and reorganization.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE

Final approval from Ottawa is still awaited for the appointment, but it is expected he will obtain permission for a two-year leave of absence from the RCMP.

A veteran of 24 years service, first with the B.C. provincial police, and since the disbandment of that force in 1950, with the RCMP, the tall, redheaded officer is currently serving as second-in-command of the Prince Rupert subdivision.

U.S. Tax Plan Rocks Ottawa

OTTAWA (CP)—Official Ottawa reacted with deep concern Thursday to the potentially explosive proposal by President Kennedy for a U.S. tax deterrent to American foreign investment.

U.S. Tax Move

No Bite On B.C. Projects

By TERRY HAMMOND
Colonist Legislative Reporter

B.C.'s two huge hydro power projects are safe from the jaws of President Kennedy's proposed new tax bite on foreign investment, Premier Bennett told the Colonist Thursday.

He said some sort of move by the U.S. to curb the outflow of American dollars has appeared to him to be inevitable for some time and B.C. has taken steps to meet it.

One of the steps was in amassing the $40,000,000 cumulative surplus which was disclosed yesterday.

The tax which Kennedy has proposed to congress will mean

In a Commons statement that reflected utmost caution, Finance Minister Gordon said the proposal, if adopted by the U.S. congress, "may well have an important effect" on the Canadian economy and balance-of-payments position.

He added it would be "unwise" for him to say more pending "careful study and consideration to all the implications of the president's proposals."

Persons close to the situation said the implications would be widespread, affecting many factors of Canada's economic life.

MAY SLOW GROWTH

Among the possible effects: Slower economic growth, higher interest rates, new foreign exchange problems, and a rise in American investment in U.S.-controlled firms in Canada.

Mr. Gordon held several meetings with senior officials and informants indicated the government is seeking means of offsetting some of the repercussions of the president's proposal, especially higher interest rates that could affect industrial expansion and employment.

NOTE CONSIDERED

The government may send a diplomatic note to Washington setting out Canada's fears and objections.

In his message to Congress, President Kennedy called for an immediate excise tax on American purchases of securities from Canada and 21 other industrialized countries. The tax would be 15 per cent on stock purchases and from 2½ to 15 per cent on purchases of bonds, debentures and other debt securities maturing in more than three years.

STOP OUTFLOW

His goal is to stop heavy outflow of U.S. investment capital which has created balance-of-payments difficulties.

Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons the U.S. treasury sent a special official here Thursday morning to brief the Canadian government.

Mr. Gordon said the effect would be to add an extra one per cent to the annual interest costs on Canadian bond borrowings in the U.S.

George Nowlan, former Conservative finance minister, said in the Commons that Mr. Gordon's statement to the House on the president's proposal was "one of the most important statements" that could be made.

DOCKERS PLAN

Work Stoppage

The International Longshoremen's and Warehousemen's Union has called a one-day work stoppage for today in Vancouver, New Westminster and Port Hardy as general membership meetings can be called to report on negotiations with employers. There will be no stoppage in Victoria.

Red Agent 'Still In Russia'

MOSCOW (AP)—Investia said Thursday the man named as the Russian intelligence officer who was reported to have defected to the West, Anatoly Dolynin, is actually in Russia.

The Soviet government newspaper backed its claim by publishing a picture of a blond, bespectacled young man which it said was taken in its offices Thursday.

It said Dolynin worked in the Soviet embassy in London in 1961, as Western reports said.

"Of course, he never defected and never asked anyone for asylum," the newspaper said.

Contributory Plan

Old Age Pension Boost To $75 Slated Next Year

OTTAWA (CP)—The old age pension will be boosted $10 to $75 monthly at age 70 early next year under the proposed Canada Pension Plan, Health Minister Judy LaMarsh told the Commons Thursday.

By October next year, it is hoped to start collecting employer-employee contributions up to a maximum $3.32 monthly from each—or a maximum $10 annually — to finance the scheme.

The proposals outlined Thursday, including the $10 increase and subsequent additions, will be financed by contributions. The basic $65-a-month old age pension will continue to be financed by the old age security tax—amounting to three per cent of income or a maximum of $30 a year.

Under the new contributory plan January, 1966, has been set as the target to begin paying the first additional amounts over and above the flat $75 monthly pension. These additional payments would start at a maximum $10 a month per individual in 1966 and rise to a maximum $100 at the end of the 10-year program to get the scheme launched.

MAXIMUM OF $175
Thus, under maximum conditions depending on earnings, an individual by 1975 could be getting a federal pension of $175 monthly compared with the existing payment of $65.

In addition, in 1966 individuals can elect to take their pensions after age 65 or any year thereafter up to age 70—but such pensions would be smaller than those taken at age 70.

HARD WORK AHEAD
The whole timetable is contingent on Parliament passing the necessary legislation, plus some hard work for nearly a year in lining up the machinery, which will include identification numbers for each individual and a special computer.

Coverage will be compulsory for most employees. Possible exceptions will be persons such as farm help—where it will be difficult to administer the collection of contributions by employers.

TWO PER CENT
Contributions will be based initially at not more than two per cent of earnings up to a total of $4,000 annually. Persons earning more than $4,000 will contribute at the $4,000 rate.

Contributors will benefit proportionately to the amount of their investment in the fund, which will be self-supporting in its entirety. Miss LaMarsh said.

DERISIVE PLAN
Opposition Leader Diefenbaker, following her in the preliminary Commons debate at resolution stage, said the plan was "far from clear," and presented to Parliament "with a great deal of window dressing in it."

He added:
"The old people will be thoroughly dismayed by the fact that the $10 increase promised in the election campaign..."

FOR VOTES

"For votes," one of the Conservative backbenchers interjected.

"... is not going to be received immediately as had been promised."

On White House Lawn

Students Mob Kennedy Grab Hankie, Tie Clasp

$11,500,000

Estate of $11,500,000 was left by Swedish financier Dr. Axel Wenner-Gren, half of it to the Wenner-Gren Foundation of Sweden. It was learned Thursday. His huge industrial plans for central B.C. were finally dropped after his death.

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Kennedy lost his breast pocket handkerchief and a PT boat tie clasp Thursday when he was mobbed on the White House lawn by 2,500 jostling foreign students.

The president got back to his office safely, still smiling, but a little wilted.

But secret service agents and White House policemen who ringed the president to protect him did not fare so well.

One officer, who has had heart trouble, was overcome in the 90-degree heat; another had all of his tie except the knot torn from his neck, and a secret service agent lost a shoe.

A boy snatched Kennedy's tie clasp, and a girl got his handkerchief. "That's two from our bus that got something," one girl proudly exclaimed.

Another girl, watching officers trying to protect the president, observed: "My, but these policemen are so fat."

The melee took place at the annual White House reception for foreign students in the U.S. under American field service exchange scholarships.

when Kennedy—after making brief remarks—walked up to the students massed in a roped-off area.

The students swarmed around him and poked into his prized boxwood hedges.

The monks and nuns remained inside the Ka Lai Pagoda, which has been blockaded by government police since Tuesday.

Diem in a broadcast said he had instructed a special inter-ministerial committee to cooperate closely with Buddhist leaders to settle complaints about implementation of an agreement signed between the Buddhists and the government June 16.

He also acceded to Buddhist demands that all sects be given equal rights to fly religious flags.

The Buddhists claim that the government is being too tardy in putting into effect the provisions of a communique, which was aimed at equating Buddhism with Christianity in this predominantly Buddhist nation.

Viet Nam Meets Buddhist Demands

SAIGON (Reuters-AP)—South Viet Nam's Roman Catholic President, Ngo Dinh Diem, held out an olive branch to the country's Buddhists Thursday night as Buddhist monks and nuns ended a 48-hour hunger strike against alleged religious discrimination.

The monks and nuns remained inside the Ka Lai Pagoda, which has been blockaded by government police since Tuesday.

Diem in a broadcast said he had instructed a special inter-ministerial committee to co-

Canadian Imports

U.S. Senate Backs Marked Lumber

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate voted Thursday, in the face of Kennedy administration opposition, to require that Canadian lumber imported into the United States be marked to show its origin.

The requirement was embodied in an amendment sponsored by Senator Warren G. Magnuson (Dem. Wash.) to a House of Representatives bill requiring that when imported articles are repackaged in this country, the new packages must be marked to show the country of origin.

Magnuson's amendment was adopted on a standing vote. Senators from the Pacific Northwest long have complained about Canadian lumber imports and have demanded action to stop them.

The Washington Senator told his colleagues Thursday that "Canada has taken 90 per cent of our (lumber) market."

State and commerce department officials told the finance committee during hearings on the legislation that such an amendment would violate a long-standing trade agreement between the United States and Canada.

The state department submitted to the committee an aide memoire from the Canadian embassy declaring that "Canadian authorities would consider such marketing requirements as having serious restrictive implications."

The bill now goes back to the House for consideration of the lumber amendment.
